Injurious crash: Concord Street

Area man Med-Flighted to Boston hospital

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - A head-on traffic accident that occurred on Concord Street Monday afternoon resulted in a Med-Flight trip to Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center for Erik Hesse of North Reading.

Hesse was traveling eastbound on Concord Street toward North Reading when his black Chevrolet Monte Carlo struck a tractor-trailer traveling westbound. The accident occurred in Wilmington between the I-93 interchange and Fordham Road at approximately 12:30 p.m.

"Upon preliminary investigation, it would appear that the Chevy Monte Carlo crossed over the center line and into the westbound lane," said Wilmington Deputy Chief of Police, Robert Richter.

The accident is being investigated by the Wilmington Police Officer Matthew Stavro, the State Police Reconstruction Team, and the State Police Truck Team.

Hesse sustained a deep wound to his neck and was Med-Flighted from the nearby Teradyne parking lot. Hesse's injuries were subsequently determined to be non-life threatening.

The driver of the tractor-trailer, Michael Armano of

New home for the Food Pantry

From the Swain to the South

By JULIE FENNELL

WILMINGTON - The South Schoolhouse on Chestnut Street, circa 1894, has played many roles in Wilmington's town history. Over the past 112 years it has served as a schoolhouse, skating club headquarters, and Marine Corps. League headquarters. In the upcoming months, the Wilmington Food Pantry will be the newest member to dwell within those historic walls.

The Food Pantry is currently located on the first floor of the Swain School where it has resided since its launch in January 1992. It will continue to operate at the Swain School until upgrades can be made to the new location to make it a workable situation. Those upgrades include creating a parking lot, adding ramps for disabled access and modifying the wiring to support the Food Pantry's refrigerators and freezers.

"Our current location has lots of stairs and it's not always easy for residents to get to us," says Bob DiPalma, who manages the Food Pantry. The new location will give better access to all residents who are in need.

Carolyn Harris, Chair of the Wilmington Historical Commission, is equally delighted with the future new residents.

"It's wonderful to put the South Schoolhouse to good use," Harris said. "Obviously, it will help the community at large. We will be pursuing a historic district in that area."

Masked gunman fires shots

Local woman flees from suspect as bullets fly on Jacquith Road

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - Police continue their investigation of the shooting that occurred on Jacquith Road last Wednesday evening.

Neighbors throughout the area reported hearing two gunshots, followed by blood-curdling screams and several more gunshots at approximately 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, September 20th.

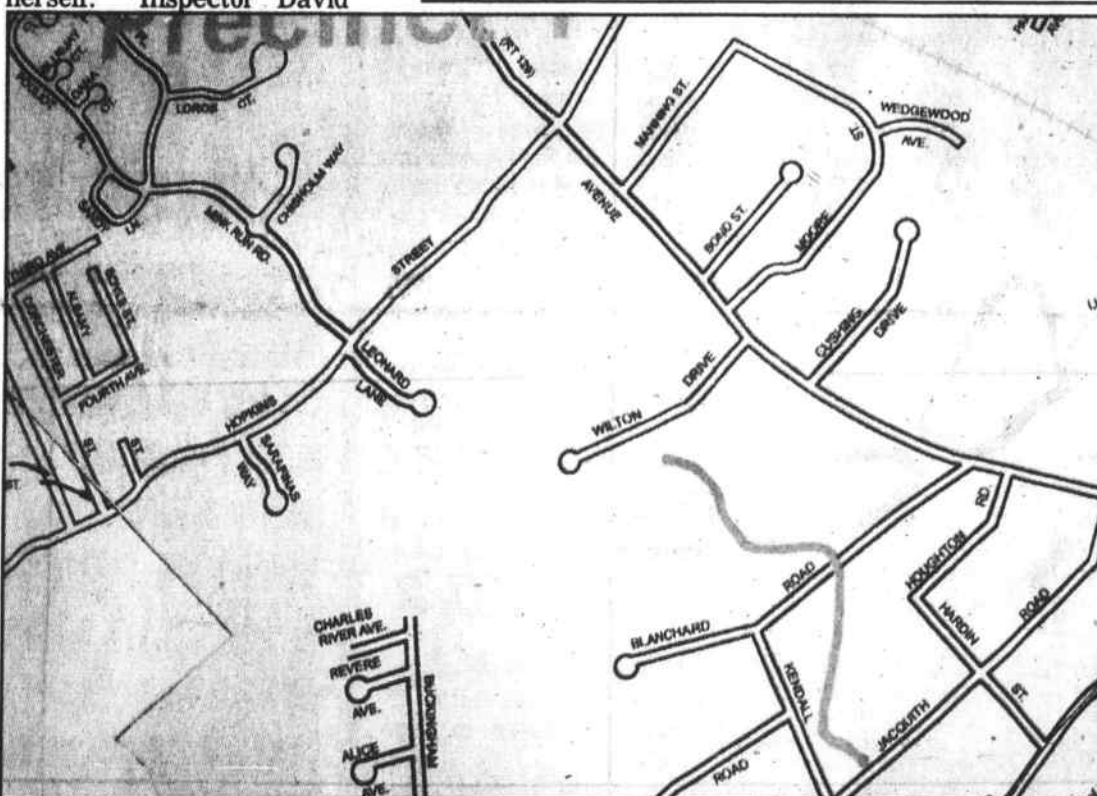

Having returned from a shopping trip, Catherine McCallan backed her vehicle into the carport of her Jacquith Road home. As she exited the vehicle, a man she described as being dressed all in black with a black mask and black cap came out from behind the carport with a gun in each hand. The gunman spoke to McCallan, who dropped the shopping bags and purse and ran toward a neighbor's house. The gunman reportedly fired several shots before fleeing in the opposite direction.

Police received several 911 calls related to the incident, including one from McCallan herself. Inspector David

Scene of the crime: Catherine McCallan had backed her car into this carport (the rear flap was down at that time) and was accosted by a masked gunman as she exited her car. K9 Officer Kevin Watson of the Boston Police Special Operations Unit is seen here leading his dog in a search of the general area at which shots were fired last Wednesday evening. Watson's dog, Jerry, has been specially trained to locate guns and spent shell casings.

K9 units tracked the suspect through woods (as shown in red) for approximately 1/2 mile before losing his scent somewhere in the area of the old cranberry bog (as delineated above in blue) located off of Shawshen Avenue. Three hours after the shooting occurred, a resident reported seeing a suspicious male fitting the gunman's description entering some woods in the area of Pouliot Place and BlueJay Court, which appears in the upper left corner of the map.

Sugrue, who happened to be nearby in an unmarked vehicle was the first to arrive on the scene. Sugrue began to establish a perimeter and immediately called for additional police back up.

The suspect was further described by McCallan as being approximately 5-feet 5-inches tall with dark eyes.

Officers searched through the woods behind McCallan's home as additional officers were quickly stationed along Kendall Street, Houghton Road, Blanchard Road, Hardin Street, and Shawshen Avenue.

All personnel scheduled for the midnight shift were called in early and the search area was extended, with officers additionally stationed at Wilton Drive, Moore Street, and Hopkins Street.

K9 units picked up the suspect's scent and tracked his path from the woods behind McCallan's house through to Houghton Road, to Blanchard Road, and into the abutting cranberry bog. Dogs tracked for approximately 1/2 mile before losing the scent.

At approximately 12:32 a.m., a resident of Pouliot Place reported seeing a suspicious male. She described him as wearing dark clothes and covering his face as he ran into nearby woods. She estimated his height to be approximately 5' 6" tall.

Units from Billerica, Woburn, Tewksbury and the State Police assisted in the search.

Police scoured the area for more than four hours. A State Police helicopter circled for several hours with a spotlight and infrared equipment.

Just before 2:00 a.m., following a comprehensive search, but without locating the suspect, police cleared the scene.

Police have returned to the area repeatedly over the past week searching for physical evidence and retracing the suspect's flight path. Several dozen interviews have been conducted with witnesses and neighbors, according to Wilmington Police Lt. Christopher Neville.

"We are continuing with interviews and are investigating all possible leads," Neville said.

According to Neville, police have been unable to establish

A 'Giant' in the industry

Gentle Giant Wins Prestigious BBB Award

By JULIE FENNELL

This week Gentle Giant Moving Company, headquartered in Somerville and with a branch location in Wilmington, was awarded the Better Business Bureau International Torch Award for Marketplace Ethics. The company took top honors in the category of a North American business with 100 to 999 employees. Over 1,000 companies were submitted as contenders. Gentle Giant won based on its exemplary business ethics.

The criteria in which the companies were evaluated included: commitment to and demonstration of ethical practices in the marketplace; high standard of behavior toward customers, employees, suppliers, shareholders and communities; truthfulness and accuracy of advertising and sales practices; ethical reputation among industry peers and communities in which they do business; and training and communications programs to assist employees in carrying out ethics policies.

Gentle Giant moved into the Wilmington community in 2000 and currently occupies a 120,000 square foot warehouse on Burlington Avenue; property formerly occupied by Sweetheart Plastics. They have been a member of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce since 2003. The Wilmington location is home to twelve of the company's three hundred employees.

Jon Powell, Branch Manager of the Wilmington facility, recalled his first reaction from hearing news of the win. "It was nice to hear it, but at first it was hard to realize the full impact of it. We've won so many local awards that it wasn't until our CEO announced the details that we realized how big the scope of the international award was."

"I'm so proud of our devoted and enthusiastic staff that

Shawsheen Tech strives to keep pace with industry Computer aided drafting lab renovated and updated

BELLERICA - As Shawsheen Valley Technical High School continues to grow, the school continues to adjust to the demands of its ever-expanding community.

"We're up to 1,253 students," said Superintendent-Director Charles Lyons. "Eight years ago we had 1,032. We had to create more classrooms and better utilize the existing space. But it's like a chess match - every move, since you don't have any excess space, requires three other moves."

A major change that took place over the summer was the relocation of the Computer Aided Drafting and Design lab (CADD) into a newly renovated space that was formerly used as an automotive related theory classroom.

"The place looks great," said Lyons. "The enrollment in the Commercial Art and Design program was increasing and it had to be moved to a larger space, so we moved it to drafting and then had to find a home for drafting. It made sense to locate drafting near Machine Technology."

Students in the construction programs renovated the new drafting lab as a project during the later part of last school year. They performed work on the ventilation, lighting, and wiring systems as well as constructing new custom workstations. The lab is also equipped with new personal computers and color, laser jet printers.

"What you see is pretty much state-of-the-art," said drafting instructor Andy Botticelli, who supervised the design of the drafting-room. "We took a program and we totally brought it into the 21st century."

Lyons estimated the cost of the entire drafting-room project to be about $78,000, much less than it would have been had the school hired outside contractors to perform the work.

"That includes buying all the equipment and everything," he said. "By doing it ourselves, there was basically no labor costs except for the ceiling and floor, everything else was done by Shawsheen Tech students."

"We were able to save a considerable amount of money," added Botticelli.

Parametric Technologies Corp. has also donated 300 seats of Pro/ENGINEER Wildfire, a software value of about $80,000 according to new drafting instructor Robert Guelli.

Drafting students at Shawsheen Tech are allowed to take the seats home with them if they desire. Guelli, who spent 23 years in the industry, said Shawsheen Tech students are now using identical software to what he was using while working in the industry over the summer.

"They're beyond current," said Guelli. "These students have no idea how lucky they are."

The nurse's office at Shawsheen Tech also saw major changes.

An all-new nurse's office is now larger than ever, a change made possible by the school's television studio being moved last fall.

The morning announcements during homeroom are now made from a small room in Shawsheen Tech's auditorium.

"The room was located in back of the stage and was primarily used for storage," said Lyons.

Shawsheen Tech students renovated the new studio's floor and ceiling.

The former area occupied by the nurse's office will now be used to expand the school's store. Lyons said a larger store will enable the school to expand its marketing program in the future.

Lyons said stores at Greater Lowell and Greater Lawrence Technical High Schools were used as models for Shawsheen Tech's new-and-improved area and Lyons said, maybe in the future, the store could be open before Shawsheen Tech home football games and other events.

More work on the store will be done this fall by the Shawsheen Tech student body said Lyons.

Last spring, students built a state-of-the-art nurse's office.

The new space includes a reception area, two new bathrooms, and three rooms that include beds for students who are not feeling well.

The new facility allowed nurse Terry Romkey to administer 78 physicals to athletes in only four hours.

"It was just perfect," she said. "We have over 600 students play sports and not all of the students have health insurance so they have difficulty getting physicals every year. We wouldn't have been able to do this before because we just didn't have the space. Now, students come in and say, 'Hi, I built this place.'"

It's Your Money by Joyce Brisbois

IRA BONUS FOR THE ARMED FORCES

A recently passed law offers members of the armed forces a chance to boost their retirement funds. It now treats combat pay - already tax-exempt - as compensation for IRA contribution purposes. Earlier, soldiers were prohibited from making IRA contributions if their wages consisted only of combat pay.

More good news: the option is retroactive, so members of the military can make IRA contributions for the years 2004 and 2005 as late as May 28, 2009.

What kind of IRA? Best bet for most would probably be a Roth IRA. Since combat pay is tax-exempt, soldiers won't need to deduct their contributions, unless they need a cash refund now for taxes paid. For almost anyone else, a Roth IRA is a better deal tax-wise: withdrawals are tax-free (unlike regular IRA withdrawals, which are taxed as ordinary income); and there are no mandatory distribution requirements later on, so funds can be bequeathed to family members for long-term appreciation.

Letters to the editor

Thanks to The Bury

Dear editor

I would like to express my sincere thanks to the owners and staff of The Bury restaurant in Tewksbury for making my parent's 50th anniversary party a resounding success.

The food was awesome, the service was outstanding and the ambiance delightful.

Thank you

Vote to support the library

To the Editor:

Our public library is one of the town's greatest assets. It serves all ages with a wide variety of books and other materials and offers wonderful services and programs.

Some individuals, but not all, have the disposable income to shop at Barnes & Noble. Some families, but not all, are able to have a computer and Internet service at home. Some residents, but not all, subscribe to Netflix or don't mind dropping ten or twelve dollars a week at the video rental store. Some retirees, but not all, may have several hundreds of dollars to subscribe to Morningstar or other investments guide to monitor their portfolios. Some students, but not all, have parents that are willing and able to purchase the books they need for summer reading.

The Internet will never replace a library with a good reference and research department. Ask any TMHS high-school student whose teacher gives the instruction, "Use at least three sources of literary criticism for your paper- and you may not use Internet sources." Whether the school assignment is to read an age-appropriate biography of Johnny Appleseed or to research Roman civilization, students use our public library as part of their educational experience.

Students who plan to continue their education at the college level need to learn good library skills and to have the experience of doing actual research in a reference department that spends funds in conjunction with the curriculum-frameworks.

Some Tewksbury taxpayers home-school their children, and some send their kids to parochial schools. These children use our library heavily. Whether you attend "Book Time With Your Baby" or "Wiggle Time" for toddlers or take your school age child to an evening craft or weekend story time or join the chess club or participate in a book discussion group or listen to an author read from her book - the library is a busy place where you really get your money's worth.

With a schedule of hours that allows most of our residents to make use of its resources, our public library is something to be proud of. Let's keep the library open for all to use.

Please attend the Special Town Meeting on October 3rd, and vote to support the Public Library's budget that was approved at Annual Town Meeting last May.

Sincerely yours,
Louise A. Gearty

Everything's a Story

by Andrea MacMullin

I have to admit, coming up with a topic for this column has been a little difficult for me lately. I've told you of my trials and tribulations with my washing machine and trying to keep my house clean. I've gone into extensive detail about the groundhog who eats my flowers. I've told many a story about my children, my family, and my husband's garage habits.

I've been thinking that maybe these topics are getting a little too trivial. It seems lately there are so many more important things I need to talk about - more serious matters to attend to.

Do you really care that my kitchen countertop is a cluttered mess when there is a war going on? Are you interested in my adventure in a taxicab while a member of your family is seriously ill? No, of course not.

But, maybe for just a moment, it might make you smile. And for that reason, I will try as I might to recognize the mundane and the ordinary in everyday life. Because no matter what, everyone could use a smile.

My first grader has been coming home nightly with a folder full of papers she so proudly completed in class. I have to look at them all, and she tells me in great detail about each of them.

As I was glancing over one of them last week, I burst out laughing. The students were making word forms. They needed to add letters to "it" to make new words. I know what you're thinking. No, it wasn't that one. But I'll give you hint: it was a letter found later in the alphabet, and it rhymed.

My husband and I had a good laugh, and then our daughter came to tell us about her paper. As she read down the list of words she so proudly made, she recited the word in question without skipping a beat. She clearly had no idea.

It was then that I panicked. What must the teacher think? Did she notice it? Did she laugh or was she disturbed thinking we use that sort of language in our home? My husband assured me this probably wasn't the first time she saw that sort of thing, and well, hopefully she doesn't think we talk like that.

I'm sure when parent/teacher conferences roll around I won't be able to help myself to bring it up. I have to clear my good family name.

I mention this little story only because I realized something this week, something that I have been forgetting. Everything is a story. No matter how insignificant it may seem, no matter how routine, no matter how simple - it's all worth a second thought - or at least a good laugh.

Our lives are overflowing - overflowing with work, family, and all of the other stuff called life. Take the time recognize the smiles. There might be one hiding in a backpack.

Letters to the editor

Let the process work

To the Editor:

At Tewksbury's Special Town Meeting on October 3rd, the group known as U-25 will attempt to transfer $200,000 from the public library's current budget into the Town's Stabilization Fund, for the purpose of hiring additional public school teachers for September 2007. This action takes place in the fourteenth week of the fiscal year, compounding the effect of this 17% budget cut over the remaining three-quarters of the year.

The Special Town Meeting will be emotional, because we all want the best possible education for our children. However, I urge voters to resist the precedent-setting action of raiding one department's budget in the middle of the year to benefit another department's budget eventually.

The Town of Tewksbury offers many services to its residents.

The season for preparing municipal department budgets to run these services is a long and arduous one. Those departments, such as the public library and the public schools, which operate under elected boards, have been working on their budget proposals for at least six weeks before the Finance Director distributes the annual budget distribution packet in early December to departments throughout the town. Elected boards give considerable attention to the details presented in their budget proposals before voting to approve their submission to "the town."

Next, there are several layers of review for the complex and detailed budget packets, which are compiled into thick 3-ring binders. The Town Manager, the Selectmen, the Finance Committee, and the Townwide Budget Sub-Committee review these budget proposals. These reviews seek to treat departments and services in a fair and equitable manner, especially in light of limited revenue sources and seemingly unlimited demands for those revenues. In addition to their weekly meetings during the budget season, the volunteers on the Finance Committee spend hours pouring over the documents. The Town Manager spends a tremendous amount of time finalizing revenue estimates. The Townwide Budget Sub-Committee struggles to put together a unified recommendation for the Town's overall budget to be presented at Town Meeting.

Individual department leaders get the opportunity to defend their proposals first to the Town Manager and then to the Finance Committee. Each line item is examined carefully. There are public hearings on the budgets. And finally, budgets are set at Town Meeting in May for the upcoming fiscal year that begins on July 1st.

It is almost unheard of for any budget proposal to survive this scrutiny unscathed. There is always a gap between what we want and what we get. However, it is the responsibility of the department heads to work within the parameters that are set by the budget appropriation. Departments plan their operations for the new fiscal year according to funding specified at May's Town Meeting, for staffing schedules, supply budgets and other expenditures.

In Tewksbury, we have a solid budget process.

Just let it work.

Sincerely,
Elisabeth Desmarais
Library Director
Tewksbury

Library is not a luxury

Dear Editor,

I love the Tewksbury Library, and I'd like to tell you why. When I became a new mother, we had a very tight household budget. Books, movies, and cultural activities were too expensive for us. I turned to the Library. Beautiful children's books, story hours, and museum passes kept us up to date. They still keep us up to date.

I'd love to buy all the books I want at Barnes & Noble, but instead, I get on the Library's waiting list for the latest and greatest. Netflix would be a luxury, but I can eventually see all the films everyone else is talking about by borrowing them from the Library. And now my kids are dragging me back to those wonderful Boston museums.

It's unfortunate that Tewksbury's per pupil spending and student/teacher ratios are ranked low compared to other towns in Massachusetts. However, our student test scores are NOT ranked low. Perhaps this is due to excellent dedicated teachers, doing their best with the budgets they have. Perhaps this is due to nurturing parents that take their kids to the Library and other cultural activities. Perhaps this is due to our kids having access to wonderful books.

My kids will tell you that my favorite poem is: "The more you read, the more you know. The more you know the smarter you grow; the smarter you grow, the stronger your voice, when speaking your mind or making your choice." We all need to read. We all need to speak up. We all need our Library.

The library is not a luxury. The library is a necessity, just like the Recreation Department, the Senior Center, and all those new Town vehicles. We all want a well-rounded community. We all want well-rounded children. Parents, volunteers and town employees have done a remarkable job with the resources available. We need to keep up the good work. We need to keep the Library open.

Please oppose the special Town Meeting article to reduce the Library's budget!

Sincerely,
Leann Kennedy
D'Entremont
Tewksbury

Historical perspective - defended

Dear Editor:

I read with interest Ms. Ann Yurek's criticism of my 9/11-remembrance letter, which I found to be particularly heartfelt and sincere. Not only do I consider Ms. Yurek to be an asset to our community, I take pride in counting myself among her supporters for past elective office. More importantly, I am aware of and appreciative of her son's heroic service to our country, most notably in the courageous Somali mission made famous in both print and film. Notwithstanding the above, Ms. Yurek could not be more wrong if she tried. Maybe she did try, and if so, I am impressed by her effort. If not, I am concerned Ms. Yurek may be a victim of a horrible identity theft perpetrated by Cindy Sheehan. My attempts to confirm that her letter to the Crier have been postmarked in France have been heretofore unsuccessful.

I feel a slight clarification is in order. Nowhere in my letter did I equate Saddam Hussein with Adolph Hitler. Specifically, I likened the threat of worldwide militant Islam with Nazism. Perhaps this is a matter of semantics. As a father I do not think the anguish felt by a Jewish parent watching his children being gassed to death in a grimy shower stall is any more intense than that of a Kurdish parent watching his children being gassed to death in the gutter outside their home. But I digress.

The battle being waged against this murderous, satanic enemy is a global one that transcends borders, ethnicity and politics. Iraq is merely the beachhead. This struggle extends to Africa, Spain, Iran and even London. We all remember that first day of school in 2004, when an Islamic terrorist group (none Arabic, by the way) terrorized the Russian town of Beslan. Specifically targeting children, these beasts took more than eleven hundred hostages and eventually killed over 350 kids. Abandon this cause Ann? Not me. No way. These human weeds must be pulled. If the American Left does not have either the will or testicular fortitude to do so, please do us all a favor. Stay out of the way while America goes gardening.

I celebrate, Ms. Yurek, the freedom we have to engage in this healthy discourse and express our views openly and without violent consequence. Upon reflection, I guess you have a point. There is a big difference between Hitler and Hussein. If Hitler disagreed with my opinion, the Gestapo would come to my house in the dead of night, sweep me up, and my kids would never know what happened to their dad. If Saddam took issue with your views, your kids would surely know what happened to you; as Uday and Qusay would brutally exploit your demise at the local soccer stadium.

A very sad day

Dear Editor:

It is a very sad day when a person that has lived 84 years in Wilmington cannot enjoy her last years of life. It is a very sad day when a person can harass, threaten, and intimidate a person by using Newspapers and Representative and Town Meeting to cry wolf again, again and again. It is a very sad day when people like Shine can use you and other sources to put my Mother and brother through HELL for the last 7 years. It would be a very sad day if his Grandfather knew what he has been doing to His neighbor.

It is a very sad Day when the state representative hops on the band wagon, has the state look into it to see if there was any wrong doing, then just drop it .... WHY???

It is a very sad day that not one of the persons that Shine has gone too, has gone to see my mother or brother or call them to hear there side of the story. Or print there side of the story .....

It will be a very sad day when everyone knows that Shine is crying wolf over and over and over to harass, threaten and intimidate my family, when will it come to a end.

Winchester Hospital presents free "Innovations in Breast Cancer Detection & Diagnosis" Program

WOBURN - In recognition of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Winchester Hospital's Breast Care Center will be offering a free program to residents titled "Innovations in Breast Cancer Detection & Diagnosis" on Friday, October 22nd. Registration for October 22nd event now open.

In the United States, one out of eight women will develop breast cancer during her lifetime. However, thanks to advances in technology in the medical field, breast cancer is now being detected much earlier through innovative techniques available to provide a diagnosis. When detected early, breast cancer patients can be treated and will likely survive.

On Friday, October 22, 2006,

Dr. Kelley Cornell and Dr. Delphine Lui, Associate Medical Directors of Winchester Hospital's Breast Care Center will discuss some of the diagnostic techniques being used today such as:

- * High risk screening/genetic testing
- * Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) of the breast
- * MR - guided breast biopsy
- * Digital mammography

The program will be held from 12:00 - 1:00 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, 15 Middlesex Canal Park Road in Woburn, and lunch will be provided. Area residents are asked to register for this free event by calling (781) 756-4740 by Wednesday, October 18, 2006.

Quick Health Tips

by Dr. Leslee Quick

Chiropractic

With the growing trend for people to turn to complimentary therapies comes the need for more education. Therefore, the next several articles will highlight specific natural healing techniques. I shall begin with my personal favorite, chiropractic.

Chiropractic has emerged as the largest drugless, and non-surgical health care profession in the country. It continues to grow every year as studies document the long-term efficacy of its effects on various conditions of the musculoskeletal system.

Speak to a chiropractic doctor and often there is a personal story that led them to the profession. In college my husband suffered from three herniated discs. For me, I suffered from knee, back and stomach pain during adolescence. Having parents that had seen chiropractors for years for allergies, headaches and failed back surgeries it was inevitable that I would be sent to my parent's doctor.

What amazed me was that as I received chiropractic care not only did my back pain abate, but my stomach pains resolved. At the time I didn't know why, or care. I just knew I felt good.

So what is chiropractic? Its name is derived from greek meaning "done by hand." Its roots can be traced back thousands of years. Writings from China and Greece as early as 2700 B.C. document spinal and lower extremity manipulation in easing pain.

Hippocrates, the father of medicine, published numerous texts detailing the importance of spinal manipulation as a preventative measure. He declared "Get knowledge of the spine, for this is the requisite for many diseases."

Chiropractic, as we know it today, began in 1895 when the first chiropractic adjustment took place.

The philosophy behind chiropractic is that our bodies have the amazing ability to heal itself in the absence of harmful stim-

As for anatomy and physiology behind chiropractic, our approximate 200 bones connect via articulations or joints, which allow us mobility. It is in any of these joints that a restriction of movement, or subluxation, can arise. In the spine, the adjoining bones, or vertebrae, create exits for the nerves to connect from the spinal cord to their end points, controlling all aspects of bodily functions. When a vertebral subluxation occurs, this restriction can interfere with the nerve signals creating a cascade of events known as the vertebral subluxation complex.

This complex results from the following: decreased spinal motion; nerve irritation or compression; muscle problems; cellular dysfunction; and organ dysfunction that the offending nerves supply.

Vertebral subluxations can be caused by any type of stress that is greater than the body can handle, including physical, chemical or emotional stresses.

Physical stress can include falls, accidents, difficult birth, sports, desk work, or long car rides to name a few. Chemical stresses such as pollutants and emotional stress can cause an overall tightening of the muscular system and spinal strain.

Chiropractic doctors are specialists trained to locate and correct subluxations with chiropractic adjustments. Detecting subluxations is a complicated and exacting science which, if done improperly by an untrained person, can be more harmful than helpful. However, when done correctly, not only is joint movement increased, but the cascading affect of the subluxation complex is corrected when the interference to the nervous system is removed to allow the body to function properly.

This explains why I often hear patients tell me that constipation has decreased, stomach pain abated, or that allergies have been reduced. These, to name but a few, are common secondary affects of chiropractic care to the spine.

Various methods may be used to remove subluxations. Most often, the doctor will use his/her hands to manually adjust the spine, however, other instruments may be used. In my office, for example, although I primarily use my hands for treatment, I also use specifically designed tables for disc herniations or arthritic patients. An activator, or quick pulsed instrument may also be used. Some doctors use adjunctive therapies to aid the healing process.

Be sure to talk to your doctor if you have questions about any one of these techniques or therapies. They are there to listen and help, working with you to make you feel more at ease.

Subluxations can occur in any joint in the body, including the arms and legs. That is why the majority of athletes and those who have physically demanding jobs rely on chiropractic care to stay in top shape.

Tom Brady has been a regular chiropractic patient since high school. Johnny Damon, Arnold Schwarzenegger, Lance Armstrong and a gaggle of elite athletes turn to chiropractic care to keep themselves structurally sound and ahead of their game. In fact, almost every major league now employs a chiropractic physician on the team for natural care.

Many people are also beginning to realize the benefits chiropractic can offer children. I find that children who receive chiropractic care have less health issues. My three year old daughter, for example, has never had an earache and rarely catches so much as a cold, which seems miraculous given the propensity of children around her who contract just about everything. That is why children are some of my favorite patients due to their incredible response to care.

With treatment of children comes questions, and parents are often wary of having their child adjusted. Rest assured, a

Decathlon USA to cease operations

Regional headquarters in Wilmington to be closed

WILMINGTON - Decathlon USA today announced that it will be shutting down all of its operations at the end of the year. Decathlon USA is a subsidiary of the French-based sporting goods retailer, which has hundreds of stores, mostly in Europe, but only four in the United States, all of which are in Massachusetts. "We regret that insufficient performance compelled us to take this action," said Yves Claude, Decathlon USA's Chairman of the Board.

The shutdown will affect Decathlon USA's four Massachusetts stores - in Bellingham, Burlington, Hanover and Norwood - in addition to Decathlon USA's regional headquarters and warehouse in Wilmington, Massachusetts. Earlier this year the company had announced plans for a new facility in Woburn, which now will not be built.

There are approximately 240 Decathlon employees impacted by this decision. The majority are in the four stores and many will continue working for the company as it liquidates and winds down operations. All employees will be provided with severance and benefits in accordance with federal and state law. The liquidation is expected to begin in October and be completed in December.

Decathlon's parent company bought the assets of the former MVP Sports Stores, Inc. in 1999. In 2003 Decathlon USA altered its business plan and shut down all but four of its 20 regional stores. "We want to express our appreciation to Decathlon USA's employees for all their efforts," said Claude. "We also want to thank the millions of customers who visited our stores over the past six years."

Decathlon operates 373 stores worldwide, serving 100 million customers every year. Since its inception, Decathlon has promoted a clear goal - to make sports accessible to the greatest number of people, either aspiring or experienced participant.

Commended students in the 2007 National Merit Scholarship Program

WILMINGTON - Principal, Eric Tracy of Wilmington High School, announced today that Hannah E. Blaisdell, Caitlin G. Bresnahan, Adam N. Levine, Kevin S. Martin, Kyle W. Mendelson, and Michael D. Stewart have been named Commended Students in the 2007 National Merit Scholarship Program. A Letter of Commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC), which conducts the program, will be presented by the Principal to these scholastically talented seniors.

About 34,000 Commended Students throughout the nation are being recognized for their exceptional academic promise. Although they will not continue in the 2007 competition for Merit Scholarship Awards, Commended

Students placed among the top five percent of more than 1.4 million students who entered the 2007 competition by taking the 2005 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT).

"Recognition of academically talented students and the key role played by schools in their development is essential to the pursuit of educational excellence in our nation," commented a spokesperson for NMSC. "The young people being named Commended Students have demonstrated outstanding academic potential by their strong performance in this highly competitive program. We hope that this recognition will help broaden their educational opportunities and that they will continue to pursue scholastic excellence."

Tewksbury Abatement Service assessed $16,137 penalty for asbestos removal violations

TEWKSBURY - Eagle Abatement Services, Inc. of Tewksbury has been assessed a $16,137 penalty for violations of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection's (MassDEP) asbestos regulations, which occurred during an asbestos removal project earlier this year in Ayer. Under the terms of a settlement, MassDEP suspended $6,637 of the penalty provided the company does not have any repeat violations for a period of one year.

In January 2006, MassDEP personnel responded to a complaint and conducted an inspection of the asbestos removal project being conducted by Eagle Abatement Services at the Ayer residence. MassDEP observed that the company failed to wet and carefully lower the asbestos containing materials uncontained on the ground at the residence.

The company was required to properly remove, handle, package and dispose of all asbestos-containing waste materials, and to decontaminate all impacted areas of the property. Eagle Abatement Services is an asbestos contractor licensed by the Massachusetts Division of Occupational Safety. MassDEP regulations require that asbestos removal contractors wet and carefully lower asbestos-containing siding to the ground, and that they seal the resulting wet asbestos waste into leak tight containers that have appropriate asbestos warning labels affixed to them. These work procedures are critical measures designed to prevent exposure of asbestos fibers to building occupants and the general public. Additionally, MassDEP regulations require advance notification of all asbestos removal work so that field staff can conduct compliance inspections to ensure the work is being properly done.

"Licensed asbestos contractors are fully aware that the prescribed regulatory work procedures are critical to the protection of their workers, as well as the public health and environment," said Martin Suuberg, director of MassDEP's Central Regional Office in Worcester. "Failure to strictly adhere to all required work practices inevitably results in significant penalty exposure, as well as escalated cleanup, decontamination and monitoring costs."

Property owners or contractors with questions about asbestos containing materials, notification requirements, proper removal, handling, packaging, storage and disposal procedures, or the asbestos regulations are encouraged to contact the appropriate MassDEP regional office for assistance.

MassDEP is responsible for ensuring clean air and water, safe management and recycling of solid and hazardous wastes, timely cleanup of hazardous waste sites and spills, and the preservation of wetlands and coastal resources.

Annual Harvest Festival at the Joshua Harnden Tavern and Town Museum Sunday

A "pit-cooked" pie tastes twice as good. Joyce Murray showed how to cook - without an modern oven at a recent Harvest Festival at the Harnden Tavern.

WILMINGTON - This Sunday, October 1st, the Friends of the Harnden Tavern will host the "Annual Harvest Festival". The festival is a celebration of the colonial way of life. This year, as in the past, the Friends have added some interesting demonstrations and hands-on programs for the young and old alike.

You can join the local militia for a time with the Wilmington Minutemen. Perhaps being a loyal British subject would suit your fancy. If so, Graeme Marsden of the First Foot Guard will be able to answer your questions. And every good military unit has a company surgeon, Dan Grillo will explain to you the surgeon's job. Even the women will be represented by Judy Grillo, who is an herbalist. She will be able to tell you about her home remedies.

If you are interested in the hands-on approach, you are invited to join in making hand dipped candles or printing a piece of calico fabric using block print stamps, similar to what would have been used in the 18th century. Perhaps you could take a turn at the quern and grinding some flour. A show and tell table will be available for you to check your knowledge of 18th every day items.

The festival will continue with a cooking demonstration. The recipes have been researched and some recipes will be available to take home and try. Pit cooking will allow you to appreciate all the modern conveniences of your kitchen.

The Harvest Festival will be from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on October 1st. As always, the Tavern and the Carriage house will be open for tours during the Festival. Admission will be $3 per person or $10 per family. Refreshments provided.

The Harnden Tavern and Wilmington Town Museum is located at the intersection of Salem Street (Rt 62) and Woburn Street in North Wilmington just east of the intersection with Rt 93.

At last year's Harvest Festival, Helen Durkee was demonstrating spinning as Frank Curley looked on.

This event is held RAIN or SHINE and is open to the public.

Due to our temporary site at 460 East Street, we regret that we are unable to store donations for the yard sale. It is asked that donors bring donated items to the Old Chapel the day before the yard sale. Someone will be the Old Chapel on Friday, September 29th from 9:45 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. to accept donated items for the Senior tables. ### Children in the Public Library and we're seeing lots of students at the Tewksbury Public Library as they work on homework and projects. With a new system in place to access the library's computers, students must bring their library cards with them if they want to use the computers for Internet access, word-processing or other applications.

School is back in session

Parents should remember that children under the age of ten years old should not be left alone in the library or any other public building. Children do need to adhere to our Behavior Policy if they are left unattended so that everyone at the library is able to work in a quiet and productive environment. Copies of the library's Behavior Policy and our Safety and Supervision brochure are available in the Children's Room.

This fall, the public library's hours of operation are 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. on Sundays. Parents and guardians who drop children off at the library should become familiar with these hours in order to avoid leaving children alone outside after the library closes.

Outside Makeover

Passers-by may have noticed that the library grounds look a little different now. The Department of Public Works was busy last week removing overgrown shrubs and dead trees in front of the building. This is the first phase of the "outside makeover" of the library. The Friends of the Library and the Wilmington Garden Club will be planting new shrubs purchased by the Friends in mid-October. The Department of Public Works will also reseed areas in front of the building.

Part of this outside makeover includes widening the library's entrance lane and installing granite curbing. This work is scheduled to take place the week of October 5th. Since the entrance lane will be closed during this construction, the upper lot will not be available for parking that week. Patrons are asked to park in the Wildwood Street parking lot the week of October 5th. The widening of the entrance lane will create a safe way to accommodate a future 24/7 drive up book drop. Watch for a future Friends of the Library fundraiser to raise money for a new book drop.

New Teacher Orientation

On Wednesday, September 20th, thirty Wilmington Public School teachers attended a new teacher orientation at the Wilmington Memorial Library. The orientation session was presented by Library Director Tina Stewart, Children's Librarian Susan MacDonald, Teen Services Librarian Brandy Danner and Reference and Adult Services Librarian Linda Callahan. Library staff presented information about library services that are available to teachers and students including a demonstration of research databases provided by the library and the Northeast Massachusetts Regional Library System. Each teacher received a packet with library information including how to send "assignment alerts" to the public library so that material can be organized to better help students meet the assignment goals. Thanks to Joanne Benton, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, for making the public library an integral part of the orientation for new Wilmington Public School teachers.

Paving the way for Wilmington's MWRA connection...

Presidential Way approved as official city road

By GORDON VINCENT

WOBURN - In a move that impacts Wilmington more than Woburn, the City Council this week voted unanimously to approve a petition to accept Presidential Way as an official right-of-way in the city.

The maneuver allows Wilmington to apply for a grant of right-of-way for a section of water main under Presidential Way that will supply the town with water furnished by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA).

A public hearing on the petition from Wilmington for construction work is expected to take place at the council's meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 3.

Bryan Clancy, Vice President of National Development, said the acceptance of Presidential Way was a condition of the memorandum of understanding that led to the development of the MetroNorth Corporate Center (including the Raytheon buildings) and the MetroNorth Retail Center (including the Target store).

"It's taken us a few years to get there," said Clancy, who added the next step is "bigger and better things," namely the water line to Wilmington.

The city began providing Wilmington with water last year on an emergency basis after the town lost 60 percent of its water supply in 2003, after it shut down five of the town's nine drinking wells, reportedly due to contamination from the Olin Chemical site on Eames Street in Wilmington.

Eventually, approximately 2.5 miles of 24-inch water lines will be constructed from Washington Street, then down Commerce Way, to Presidential Way and into Wilmington, connecting the town to Woburn's MWRA water trunk.

Wilmington would then pull water into the new pipes from Woburn's infrastructure - although the water would originate from the MWRA's supply - and reimburse the city of Woburn.

All personnel, construction, and maintenance costs related to the new line, which is expected to take a year to build and connect, are to be paid for by the town of Wilmington.

The intermunicipal agreement must be renewed on an annual basis.

As part of the deal, Wilmington officials also agreed to endorse the reconstruction of the New Boston Street Bridge, which is seen as a connector route for trucks from the commercial and industrial sections of North and East Woburn to Wilmington.

Woburn officials hope the reconstruction of the bridge will alleviate the traffic problems on Main Street in North Woburn.

Public hearing
Speaking in favor "with reservations," was Paul Meaney, Executive Director of the Woburn Business Association.

Meaney said that prior to 1984, there was no road there, only one building, and the property was controlled by a trust under the name Walter James.

When the road was constructed, it "was really put on a private way." When James started selling portions of the parcel, along with them went "pieces of the roadway into deeds" for private ownership.

"You're accepting a roadway, a piece of it belongs to someone else," said Meaney.

"If you've heard the last of it, I don't know, but the owner feels like he's entitled to some type of remuneration," he added.

As for the water line itself, Meaney said the primary concern was public safety, especially due to the proximity to the contaminated Industri-Plex site, which is capped.

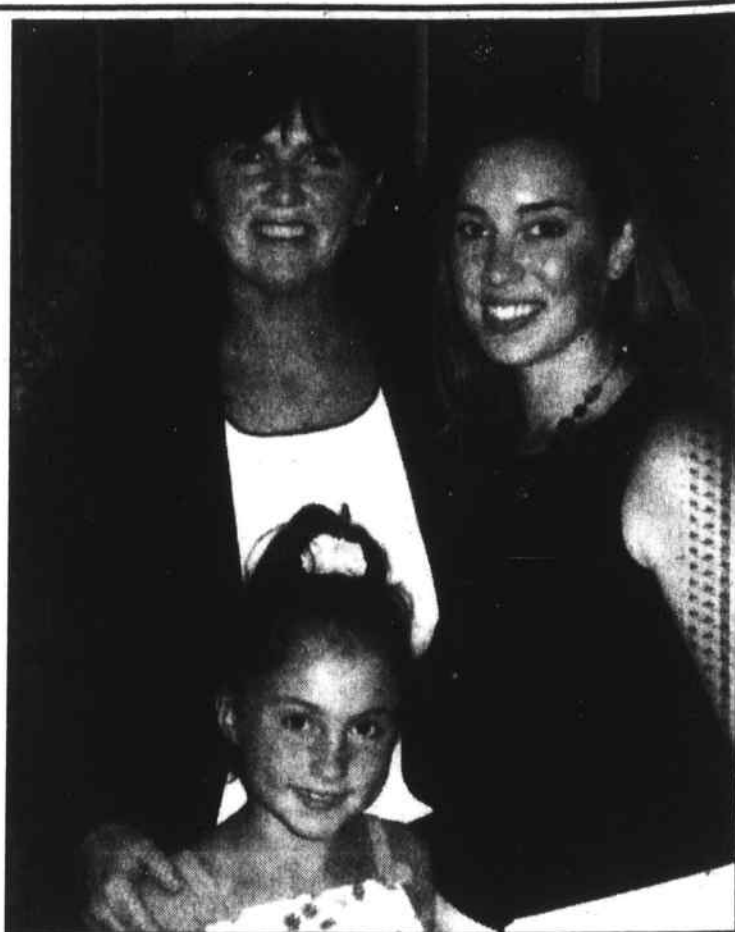

He suggested the city hire a clerk of the works who has knowledge of contamination.

"Please be very vigilant," said Meaney.

Also, he suggested that most of the construction work be done at night - starting at 7-8 p.m. and ending between 3-4 a.m. - in order not to disrupt what is an entirely commercial area during the day.

Marc Weinreich, of Resources for Responsible Site Management, the custodial trust that oversees the Industri-Plex site, also spoke in favor of accepting Presidential Way.

"It's a critical part of the overall traffic flow in that area," Weinreich said.

Kelly Warren, of Wilmington, will be taking the Massachusetts State Exam in February on completion of her apprenticeship.

She graduated from Wilmington High School in 2000 and Merrimack College in 2005 with a degree in Accounting and Finance.

She is currently learning the funeral business from Charles F. Blackington, Jr. at the Blackington, Conroy & Hayes Funeral Home in Newton, MA and at the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc. in Wilmington, MA. With her professional manner she will be an asset to the families of the Newton and Wilmington Communities and the funeral industry itself.

In the picture, Kelly is with her mother Margaret McKenna and her daughter Allison Warren. Kelly is a life-long resident of Wilmington and she currently resides on Church Street with her husband Andrew Warren and their daughter Allison.

Kelly is wished the best of luck by her mother, her brothers William F. Cavanaugh III and his wife Trisha, Joseph A. Cavanaugh & Kevin P. Cavanaugh and her sister Jillian Cavanaugh, (who also take an active role in the success of the funeral homes), nieces Julia & Alyssa, & nephew Geoffrey William Cavanaugh and the rest of her family and friends in Wilmington.

GRADUATION WALTZ: Mercedes Strow Bowley was in her cap and gown for a graduation dance at the 45th anniversary of the date she should have received her diploma. Her husband, Ed gave her a whirl on the dance floor the delight of dozens of her classmates

THE GRADUATE: It only took 45 years, 3 months and 11 days for Mercedes Strow Bowley to receive her diploma at the Wilmington High School Class of 1961's 45th anniversary reunion on Sunday. Flanking the new graduate are VP George Szadis, Pres. Jon Meads, husband Ed Bowley and to the right Tres. Diana Imbimbo Miladin.

WHS Class of '61 toasts 45 years in the "Real World"

BY ELAINE DEPASQUALE

The Wilmington High School Class of 61 enjoyed their 45th reunion on Sunday. It should have gone in the Guinness Book of Records as the world's longest graduation ceremony. That's what George Szadis, vice president of Wilmington High's Class of 61 said when he presented a diploma to Mercedes Strow Bowley at the Class of 61's 45th reunion last Saturday at the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks.

That Strow Bowley had been unable to graduate with the class 45 years ago had always been a sore spot to the class's 140 plus members. Those who attended the reunion last week attempted to set things straight with an official looking document signed by everyone present and a march by Strow

Bowley around the ballroom in cap and gown on the arm of her husband, Ed.

"This commencement began June 11, 1961 and, for us, ended today," Szadis said. "Now you can go out into the real world," he advised Strow Bowley to echoes of laughter. High spirits and hi jinx were evident throughout the day long reunion event which began with a lobster and clambake/barbecue in the Elks' outdoor grove and ended eight hours later indoors after a nightcap of speeches, music, dancing and karaoke singers.

Class President Jon Meads was on hand from his home in Seattle to accept a toast of Moxie offered by Szadis. "It's Jon's favorite beverage, but we call it Maine Champagne," said the Durham, Maine resident of the beverage made only in his home state.

Szadis and his wife Linda Calhoun Szadis are both members of the Class of 61. Classmates lifted their glasses with grins and a few grimaces. "It tastes like medicine!" Someone was heard to say. All four of the class officers were present. They were Meads, class president; Szadis, vice president; Barbara Lynch Brennick, class secretary; and Diana Imbimbo Miladin, class treasurer, who flew from Glendale, Arizona for the event.

Class members came from all over the U.S. as well as from Wilmington and its neighboring towns. Maureen Doyle Medeiros made the trek from Lake Hughes, CA. Rick Damelio, now a superintendent of schools, came from Foster

City, CA. Phil Sweet flew in from Denton, Texas and Rose Dukus Henneberger arrived from Eagan, Minnesota. Richard Waters came from Sun City Arizona and Jeanette Meleschuk McEnroe from Elctin, FLA.

Strow Bowley arrived from Marietta, GA. And Diane White Tracy and her husband Gary drove the hundreds of miles from their home in Summerville, South Carolina in three days.

Also in attendance were Teachers Frank Kelley and Irene Sharp Brennan. Brennan and Kelley were each presented a plaque for their dedication to Wilmington students. Brennan, who began teaching in Wilmington in the 1940s, has retired. But Kelley, after whom the high school track was recently named, still teaches periodically at Wilmington High.

Music and dancing have been a standard part of the Class of 61's gatherings but the addition of Karaoke was a novelty. Singers trooped up to the microphone for solos, duets and, in one memorable performance for six singer harmony by Jean DeAngelis Chang, Terry Enos Johnston, Maureen Beaton Munroe, Bunny Munroe Knight, Terry Johnston's daughter Katie Johnston Mackey and her friend Pam White, daughter of the late Eugenia Emery Rooney.

Underclassman Bunny Munroe was declared an official member of the Class of 61 and presented with a floral award for her hard work and many contributions to the success of the class's 45th reunion.

Lloyd Carney, nicknamed "One L", was presented with a realistic looking but absolutely inedible foam rubber cake and sung Happy Birthday to by the entire room in memory of the many times he had to suffer through it while in high school.

Class mascot Harvey of the play of the same name was in attendance as well. His likeness was printed on the back of a Wilmington Wildcats t shirt given to each member of the Class of 61 thanks to the efforts of Reunion Committee Member Rose Polvere Chase.

However, since he is an invisible rabbit only his top hat, white gloves and cane could be seen leaning on the bar.

A 'Giant' in the industry

made this possible," announced Barry O'Toole, Gentle Giant Chief Executive Officer. O'Toole continued by saying that the company, which was founded in 1980 and now operates over 12,000 moves per year, has always been committed to "only hiring really great people." That strategy has proved highly successful when looking at the track record of regional awards won, including the Boston Business Journal's Best Places to Work in Massachusetts for 2004, 2005 and 2006. Other accolades include The Better Business Bureau's Local Torch Award for Excellence in 2002, 2003 and 2005, and The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce's Small Business of The Year award.

Recently, the company demonstrated its commitment to community involvement by participating in Burlington's truck show. Powell said, "We heard about it and decided to bring in our biggest trailer. The kids loved it."

"Gentle Giant has an outstanding reputation in the marketplace," says Steve Cole, President and CEO of the Council of Better Business Bureaus. "They are a shining example of how businesses that do the right thing have a real competitive advantage. Their high standards of excellence and commitment to integrity have created highly loyal customers and employees, which will serve them well as they expand into new major markets across the country."

O'Toole was notified of the award win while vacationing in Ireland several weeks ago, and it was requested that he keep the news confidential until it was officially announced this week. After revealing the win at the monthly staff meeting, the news quickly spread throughout the company via word of mouth and the company newsletter.

"We feel very fortunate to have won so many accolades, but being honored on such an international scale is extremely rewarding," said O'Toole. "As we expand into new markets such as Charlotte, North Carolina and Northern Virginia, we will carry these strong values with us in all that we do."

a motive and are treating the incident as a random act. "There is nothing to indicate otherwise," Neville said. "I don't think of anything quite like this ever happening in town, or in the surrounding areas for that matter."

No shell casings have been recovered, but police do believe that shots were fired.

"The witness statement and the corroborating statements from several neighbors lead us to believe that shots were fired," Neville said.

Inspectors David Sugrue and Thomas Miller are the lead investigators on the case. Anyone with any information related to the incident is urged to contact police at 978-658-5071.

Revere, did not report any injuries, despite substantial damage to the front-end of his vehicle.

A third vehicle, a red Ford Winstar, operated by Philip Hebert of North Reading was also involved. It appeared to have been struck by the Monte Carlo following its initial collision with the tractor-trailer.

Wilmington Fire Department worked quickly to contain the significant spillage of diesel fuel from the truck's ruptured fuel tank. Armed with shovels, fire and emergency crews set-up a temporary basin, which successfully kept the diesel fuel from reaching a nearby stormwater drain. A landscaping crew that was working nearby with a Bobcat assisted.

A touching makeshift memorial was set up at the entrance to the Boutwell Early Childhood Center in remembrance of Carl Borgeson, who passed away last weekend. As a crossing guard at that entrance for several years, Carl protected our children and was beloved by students and parents alike.

Charles River Laboratories awarded $111.6 million National Cancer Institute contract

Will construct new facility in support of NCI and RMS geographic expansion

WILMINGTON (BUSINESS WIRE) Charles River Laboratories International, Inc. (NYSE: CRL) announced that it has been awarded a ten year, $111.6 million contract by the National Cancer Institute (NCI), more than doubling the size of its current contract with NCI. For the last twelve years, Charles River has provided onsite staffing support to NCI's Frederick Cancer Research and Development Center (FCRDC), and this award expands and strengthens that collaboration by converting the current onsite staffing contract into a long-term dedicated space agreement. In support of the new contract, Charles River will construct a shared-use facility to provide research model production and related services to NCI-FCRDC, addressing NCI's current and future research support needs.

The new, state-of-the-art shared-use facility will be constructed in close proximity to NCI-FCRDC's current operation in Frederick, Maryland, and Charles River expects construction to be completed in the third quarter of 2008. The portion of the shared facility dedicated to meeting NCI-FCRDC's support needs will be staffed and operated by Charles River's Consulting and Staffing Services (CSS) group. CSS, a growing business within Charles River, offers recruitment, training, staffing and management services to customers using Charles River personnel to staff customers' facilities or space in Charles River facilities dedicated to specific customers. To support this new contract, Charles River will dedicate an 80-person staff who will collaborate with NCI-FCRDC in providing genetically defined, pathogen-free, mice to support NCI/NIH (National Institutes of Health) funded research targeting the causes and treatments of infectious diseases, metabolic diseases, cancer, bioterrorism threats and other nationally recognized health issues.

Under the terms of the new contract, Charles River will also assume responsibility for the management of the NCI/NIH Tumor and Natural Products Repositories, in support of the Developmental Therapeutics Program. These Repositories store a wide array of tumor and other samples under carefully controlled conditions so that they can be made available to researchers who are exploring the causes and treatment of cancer and other diseases.

The portion of the shared-use facility not dedicated to NCI will be occupied by Charles River's Research Models and Services (RMS) business, which will use this new space as a platform for growth in the Baltimore/Washington geographic market. This represents another significant step in Charles River's ongoing strategy to situate RMS production facilities in close proximity to targeted markets, and to make an increasingly broad range of Research Model Services easily accessible to customers.

"We are pleased to have the opportunity to extend and expand our collaboration with NCI-FCRDC and to dedicate a significant portion of this new facility to supporting NCI's future research needs," stated James C. Foster, Charles River's Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer. "I am confident that our 60 years of experience in constructing and managing highly efficient, state-of-the-art research model facilities will be a meaningful contribution in advancing the government's research mission. I am equally confident that the construction of this new shared facility will provide significant opportunities for our Research Models & Services business to increase its presence in this targeted market."

This project will be funded in whole or in part with federal funds from the National Cancer Institute, National Institutes of Health, and Department of Health and Human Services under contract no. HHSN2611200612001C.

New home for the Food Pantry

Our hope is that the building will be placed on the National Register of Historic Places and Historic Districts. It has played an integral part in Wilmington's history.

Longtime residents of Wilmington may recall that the one-room schoolhouse taught students through the 1930's. Many may also recall spending fun time on the skating rink behind the schoolhouse. For several years the building was home to the skating club, which boasted Wilmington native and two-time Olympic Bronze Medalist speed skater Jeanne Ashworth (1960 and 1964) as a proud member. Remnants of the skating rink are still visible though now it mostly serves as a reminder of years gone by.

In 1991, the idea to build the Food Pantry was born. DiPalma, who was then Vice President of the Wilmington Community Fund, realized the important need.

"People are hungry year-round, not just during the holiday season" DiPalma said.

He brainstormed the idea with Jim Hachey, who was President of the Wilmington Community Fund at that time. Together, they researched other towns' programs and developed the program that is still going strong today.

The mission of the Wilmington Food Pantry is to "Help Wilmington residents that need food." The only requirement is for individuals to demonstrate proof that they reside in Wilmington. If they do not reside in Wilmington, the Food Pantry is committed to helping individuals by directing them to another Food Pantry location that can serve them.

DiPalma credits the Food Pantry's fourteen years of success with the town's generosity. "We really thank the people of this town for keeping us going since 1992," DiPalma said. "Wilmington is a great town to be in if you are in need. The local business community, churches, schools and residents have all supported us in our mission -- not only during Thanksgiving and Christmas but throughout the year."

The Food Pantry is staffed entirely by volunteers and welcomes donations of all kinds during the hours of 10:00 a.m. to Noon every Saturday at the Swain School. Residents in need of food can visit the Food Pantry on the second or fourth Wednesday of the month from 7:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Residents with special considerations can contact the Food Pantry directly at the number below.

In addition to food, funds are also always appreciated and can be sent to: Wilmington Community Fund, P.O. Box 147, Wilmington, MA 01887. Attn: Wilmington Food Pantry. If you are interested in learning more about the Food Pantry, volunteering or making a donation, please call 978-658-7425.

Sports

Ed Celli

TOPS Soccer Program Director

What is the TOPS Program?
TOPS soccer is an outreach program for physically challenged children.

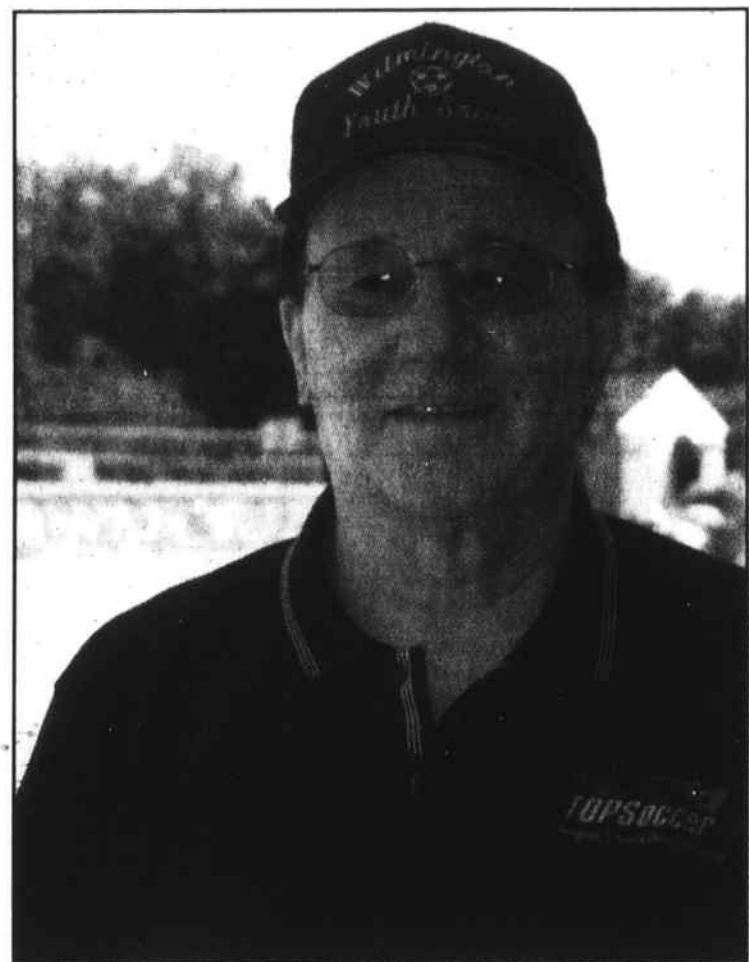

When and why did you start the program?

It was about nine years ago. I always wanted to do something like this. The program headquarters is in Texas, and I called them up and they gave me some brochures on the program and some different disabilities. I talked to the Wilmington Youth Soccer League and they said, 'Yeah,

It's not as popular as baseball and football, but hopefully it will be some day. And in Wilmington the program has taken off as well. When I started in the program 15 years ago there were 200 kids. Now there is 1,400.

Do you have any hobbies outside of TOPS?

I did three years of Girls Travel Basketball. Also, I taught CCD for nine years. As of right now, I don't have many hobbies actually. Who was the biggest influgo for it'.

Was anyone else involved in the beginning of TOPS?

The first year I was working alone and that just didn't work. There were too many kids and each kid couldn't get individual attention. The next year my son and some of his friends joined and became "coaches." Things were much easier.

We go to the Middle School and High School every year to find new coaches. It's not for everyone.

How important is it for disabled kids to have a place like TOPS to go to?

These kids really don't have anything else. They have school and school activities, but other than that there isn't really anything else. We were one of the first programs in Massachusetts.

I think the second behind Winchester, to have a TOPS program. The program is not just Wilmington kids either. We have some from Lynn, North Reading, Billerica, and even one from Blackstone.

This program doesn't go by numbers, and there is no charge to play. They have a good time and that's what it's all about.

Do you think soccer will ever be mainstream in America?

Definitely. I think it already is. Everywhere you look youth soccer has taken off. The change seems to be when the kids get out of high school, and the interest fades.

ence on you growing up?

My mother and my father both were very influential to me.

Is there one thing you think people would be surprised to know about you?

I have tremendous support from my wife. Without her I don't know how much of these things I could have been able to do. I am up at the field on Saturday from 9 AM to 6 PM. So she has been very supportive in that sense.

How has the program changed from when it started to today?

When it started there was only me, and that wasn't working. I didn't know anything about the disabilities. I need the young people to step up and come forward as coaches and its very rewarding.

It has a tremendous influence on the volunteers. They don't get enough recognition. The whole experience has really changed their lives.

If someone could describe you in just a couple words, what would they be?

I am humble. Very humble and thankful with what's been given to me and how I have been able to do the things I have done. I see the smiles of the kids and it blows me away. And let me tell you, they smile.

Local races raise over $22,000

Pan Mass Kids Bike Ride hits $15,000

Second and third graders pedal the course at the Middle School during this past weekend's Bike-A-Thon which raised over $15,000 on behalf of the Pan Mass Challenge.

(JoeBrownphotos.com)

On Sunday morning over 250 kids gathered at the West, Boutwell and Middle Schools to take part in the Pan Mass Challenge for Kids Bike Ride held for Wilmington children only.

The event raised over $15,000 with the proceeds benefitting cancer research and treatment at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through the Jimmy Fund.

The event was organized by Sue Hendee and Carolyn Priem. Hendee is a Wilmington school teacher and varsity girls soccer coach. She has been a 16-year veteran of the Pan Mass Bike Ride.

Priem's son, Bradley, was treated at the Jimmy Fund Clinic.

Congratulations goes out to each and every child who participated and who helped raise money for the cancer institute.

Half Marathon pours in seven grand

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

On a very warm Sunday morning with the sun shining bright, nearly 120 runners hit the sidewalks, streets and pavement throughout the town of Wilmington, chugging along 13.1 miles all in honor of charity.

The second annual Wilmington Half Marathon Road Race was a complete success, as $7,000 was raised in honor of the Deborah Winters Breast Cancer Foundation, which assists immediate help to families who are affected by breast cancer. Of the money that was raised on Sunday, two thousand of it will go to a pair of Wilmington High School students who have been affiliated with breast cancer.

Whether it was the runners crossing the line at record paces despite the tougher conditions with the heat, or the disc jockey blaring some good old Frank Sinatra tunes while race organizer Tom Pazyra belted out the names of each and every finisher as they came through to the finish line, the race was extremely well organized and just an overall pleasant and enjoyable experience for all.

"The day was absolutely wonderful," said Wilmington resident Laura Ahern, the Vice President of the Winters foundation. "We had great support from the town of Wilmington. Tom Pazyra did a wonderful job organizing the whole thing. We're thrilled. We raised about $7,000 that we know of right now. We'll be giving out two thousand dollars in scholarships to two Wilmington High School students who are affiliated with breast cancer. We're just thrilled to have 120 runners out here today, helping us raise money for breast cancer."

Deborah Winters was 52 years old when she passed away with breast cancer on July 14, 2005. Since then her memory lives on with the foundation which started out in Winters' hometown of Whitman and has carried over to Wilmington through Ahern and Pazyra's countless volunteer hours and work. Deborah's daughter, Windy Winters Harrington, was on hand and she told the Town Crier earlier just what this foundation has already done - even before Sunday's race started on Shady Lane Drive.

"My mother's name will never die," she said. "We have been able to help a lot of people and although it was awful, maybe my Mom had to pass to make it possible to help so many other people."

The five thousand remaining dollars (after the scholarships) goes into "Immediate Need Met" which takes care of everyday expenses for those people in need. Each of the 120 registered runners paid a $25.00 entry fee while additional fund-raising was done with the help of many sponsors including Reading Co-Operative Bank, Wilson-Wolfe Real Estate, the Wilmington

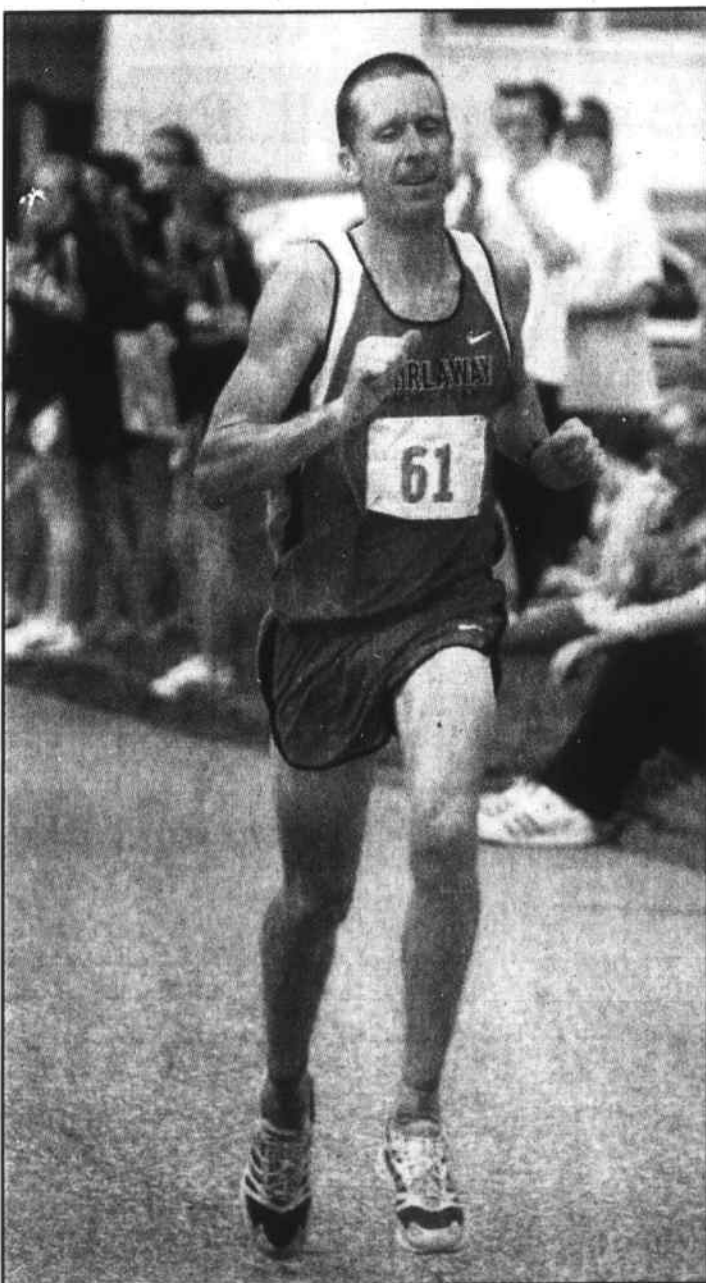

Police Union behind the strong efforts from Butch Alpers, Shea Concrete, Att. Robert Peterson, among many others.

Last year the road race was organized as part of the town's 275th Happy Birthday Celebration with all of the money raised going to that. Now seven thousand dollars later, Ahern said next year will be even better.

"We had about the same number of runners that we had last year but we will have more than double of that next year," she said. "We're going to advertise this a lot more and get the word out there better."

Last year Wilmington resident Ken Warren was the overall winner coming in at 1:19.06. This year he finished third

A special teams delight

Besides the lopsided score, one stat that might have gone unnoticed during Friday night's Wilmington High 36-2 victory over Lawrence, was the Wildcats special teams. It was pure domination.

Wilmington had six very impressive kick-offs and one punt, all of which landed deep inside Lawrence's territory. On the other side, the 'Cats partially blocked a Lawrence punt, and had four punt/kick-off returns that were playable, one with a return of 29 yards by Ernie Mello.

Senior Greg Stewart was a huge part of the success with his booming kick-offs. He had six of them on the night going for 54, 42, 41, 43, 44 and 55 yards, respectively. The 42-yard boot came off Lawrence scored on a safety. Each kick-off went deep into the Lawrence territory.

"I don't want to jinx them that's why I haven't said anything," said coach Bob Almeida, with a big laugh. "But for the first time in four years the kickoff team did a great job. I should be punching myself in the head for saying that because I'm afraid but we've done a really good job (with special teams this season).

"Coach (Mike) Barry is the defensive coordinator this year and he has two straight shut outs. Bobby French is doing a real nice job with our special teams. He's doing what no one else has been able to do over the last three years including myself. We've all taken a shot at it over the last three years and none of us could get it (where we wanted it to be and where it is now)."

Cape Ann League Football

Slow start for Wildcats turns into onslaught

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

LAWRENCE - Perhaps the Wilmington High football players were just in awe playing on field turf in the brand new 117 million dollar refurbished Lawrence High School and Veterans Memorial Football Stadium. The Wildcats started off very slow against a team they were clearly better than and it seemed strange that it wasn't happening early on.

But after the tough first half, Wilmington came out very strong in the second half scoring four touchdowns, including three in the fourth quarter, leaving the gorgeous facility Friday night with a 36-2 win over Lawrence in a Cape Ann League battle.

Wilmington is now 2-1 overall and 2-0 in league play, and will travel to Amesbury on Friday night at 7:00 pm before coming home for three straight with Masconomet, Hamilton-Wenham and Triton. Lawrence falls to 0-3 on the season with the other two losses to Central Catholic and Amesbury.

"We didn't execute in the first half," said coach Bob Almeida. "We had guys wide open and we missed them. We had dropped balls. We had kicked balls. We didn't execute offensively in the first half. Fortunately after that first drive (in the third quarter) we settled down."

"We came over here and getting off the bus I knew we weren't ready. I was panicking about it, I kept telling the kids and I was preaching and preaching about it but we weren't ready to play coming off the bus. I don't know why because we practice really hard all week and we should be ready to play. But I think it was just this whole atmosphere, the music was playing and we just weren't ready to play."

Lawrence actually took the baseball lead of 2-0 just five minutes into the game as Wildcat junior quarterback Kyle Moon was sacked in the end zone on a nine-yard loss by the combination of Jessie Fabian and Wilson Ventura for the safety. Things appeared worse as the 'Cats had to then kick-off to the Lancers, who had the ball just shy of mid-field. But on second down, co-captain Kyle Borseti sacked quarterback William Carrasco for not only a 15-yard loss, but the ball came free and Borseti pounced on the fumble putting the offense back on the field.

Wilmington's offense sputtered over its next three series with a punt, a failed fourth down conversion and a fumble of its own. But with 5:50 to go in the second quarter, the 'Cats finally got something going. Starting on the Lancers 38 after a short 28-yard punt and 10-yard return by Greg Stewart, the 'Cats scored on 7-play drive capped off by Moon connecting with Evan Borseti for a 16-yard TD. Rich Barry rushed in the conversion making it 8-2.

Wilmington started the second half off with the ball starting on its own 39. Barry took all but one of the six carries, finishing the drive with a 42-yard touchdown run going untouched through the Lancers defense. Moon hooked up with Matt Brooks on the pass conversion making it 14-2 with 7:35 left in the third quarter.

"In the second half, I think we did a lot of great things defensively and offensively I think you saw that we have some weapons," said Almeida. "Kyle throws the ball very, very well. He has a beautiful arm, he throws a beautiful ball but he has to calm down and make the throws he can because those are all throws he can make easily."

Josh Mayo - who played a terrific game - made an impressive interception in the 'Cats end zone and returned it to the Wilmington 48 before the last defender was able to drag him down. That set up Shawn Fahey's 7-yard touchdown run on the first play of the fourth quarter. The PAT kick was blocked and Wilmington had a commanding 22-2 lead.

The Stewart brothers, Greg scored on an 15-yard TD pass from Moon, and Steve rushed in an 11-yard keeper play leading the second offense late in the fourth quarter, which put the exclamation point on the scoring and the game.

"(Greg) Stewart had another big game," said Almeida. "Richie Barry was great. Mello and Fahey did a great job and the offensive line really played well all game long."

Wildcat boys score a little revenge

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The first time the two teams met, back on September 14th, North Reading walked off the field with a 2-0 win over the Wildcats. On Tuesday night the two teams met up again. And heading into the game you would think that the Hornets were favored. Besides the first round win over Wilmington, North Reading had a 4-0-2 record and had not been scored upon. The Wildcats on the other hand, had just picked up their first victory of the season three days earlier.

But the long lasting cliché of "that's why they play the games" came into effect as the Wildcats trounced the Hornets, 4-0, in a very physical game under the lights at Alumni Stadium.

Golfers putting behind

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Wilmington High golf team has been showing steady improvement over the past few weeks. Unfortunately for the Wildcats, that improvement has not shown in the win column, but there have been several quality performances by some of the younger players on this squad that bode very well for the future of the program.

The Wildcats last two matches are a great example of both the joy of having a young and up and coming team as well as the frustration of not being able to pick up the victories needed in order to qualify for state tournament play.

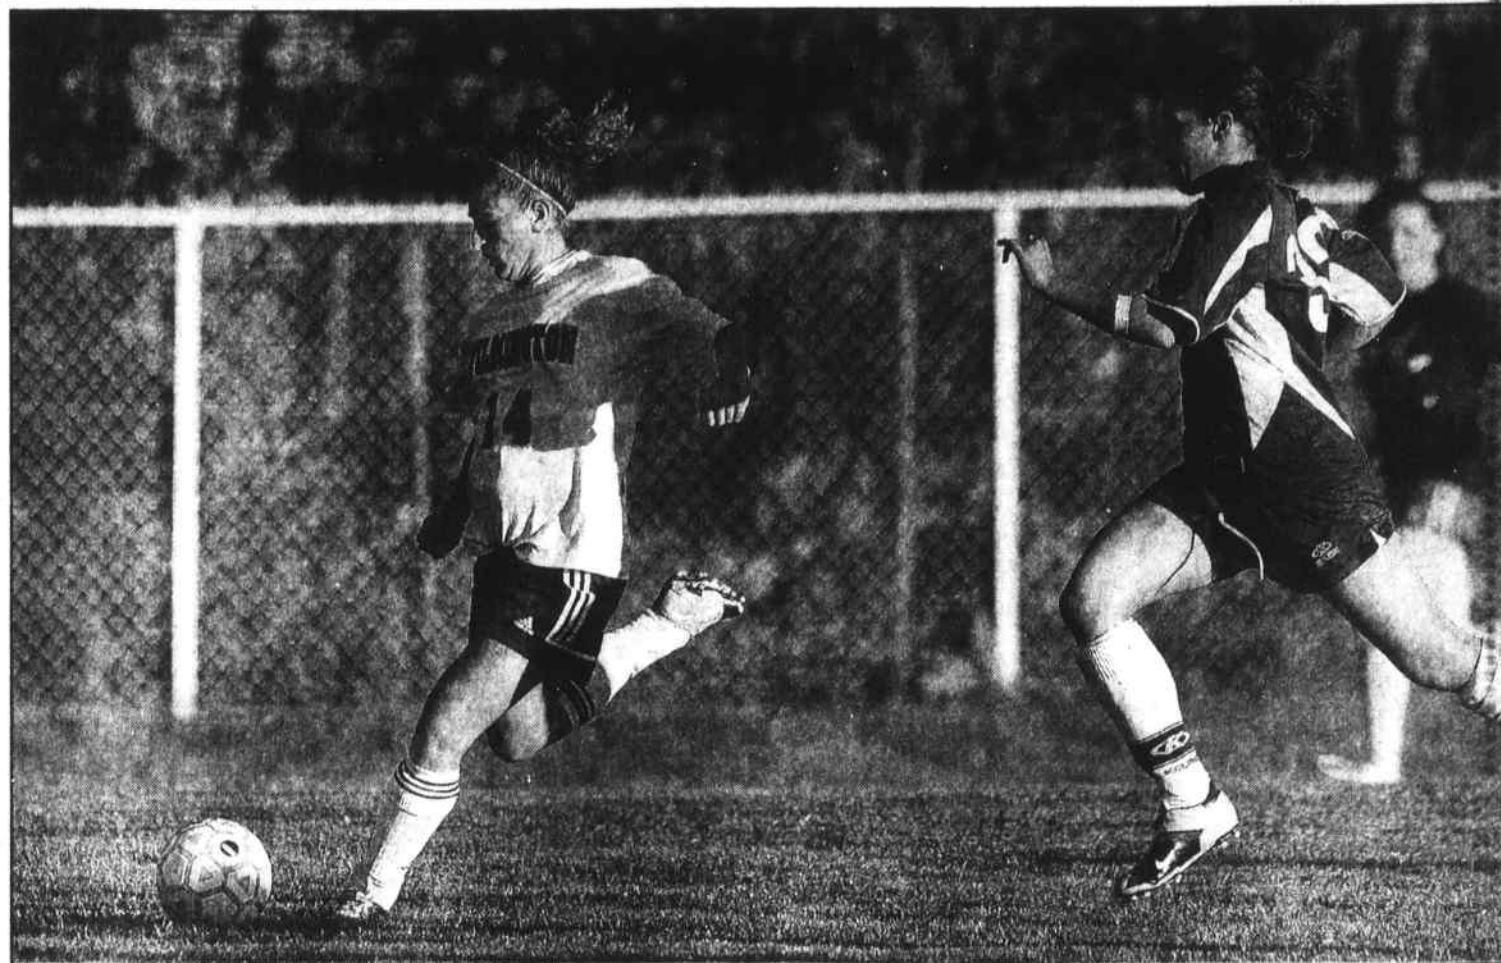

On Monday afternoon at Hillview CC, the Wildcats suffered what had to be their most devastating loss of the season, dropping a 128-127 decision to Cape Ann League rival North Reading, and on Tuesday they scored 117 points only to lose to another CAL rival, Hamilton-Wenham by a score of 152-117.

Their record on the season is now 2-6.

"It was a very frustrating loss," Wildcats coach Mike Rowinski agreed of the North Reading defeat. "We were leading the whole way but North Reading came up with three pars and a birdie on the ninth hole and we did not match them. Give credit where credit is due, they did what they had to do to win."

In the loss the Wildcats showed both a lot of the promise for the future as well as some of the struggles of the present.

"It comes down to chipping

Huge win for girls cross country

By JAMIE POTE

The resurgence of the Wilmington High girls cross country team has continued. Last Wednesday afternoon, the Wildcats knocked off perennial power North Andover, 22-35. Although the Knights didn't have defending Division 2 state champion Kristen Kasper (the niece of former Bruins' player and coach Steve Kasper) in the line-up, this is a huge win for the 'Cats, who had gone the previous two years without a win and now are 2-2 overall.

"Had Kasper run, it would have made it a very tight

After tough start, girls knock down North Reading

By JAMIE POTE

Wilmington High girls soccer coach Sue Hendee couldn't pinpoint exactly what the biggest problem has been thus far. Obviously there's smaller things that can easily be picked out, but having an 0-5 record to start the season certainly isn't something she expected or can relate too. After all it was just the fall of '03 and '04 when the program won league titles with 21 combined victories.

Last Friday afternoon, Wilmington was dropped by a very big, very good and undefeated Newburyport team, 5-1, at the Shawheen School. Now the 'Cats have lost to four very good teams, Masconomet (twice), North Reading, Lynnfield and now Newburyport by a combined score of 17-4.

On the flip side of that, the combined records of those four teams is an amazing 20-1-5, with the lone loss coming as Masconomet defeated North Reading. Wilmington is relatively young with 11 freshmen and sophomores, however there is a strong balance with 8 seniors and two juniors, with many having serious varsity experience.

"The first half we did play very well but it's not a 40 minute game," said Hendee. "Today was not a good game. I don't think it was a 5-1 game. They are a very technical, solid team. They pass the ball really well, they move without the ball very well and that's what we need to learn and be better at, moving without the ball. We need to anticipate more and react less."

Wilmington played a very solid first half as the teams ended in a 1-1 tie. But the second half was completely different. The 'Cats struggled mightily in their own end, struggled in the midfield with lots of room for the Clippers to move with the ball, and also struggled a lot on the 50-50 balls. "We're 0-5 and I think the combined record of every team we have played is 20-1," said Hendee. "And the only loss that North Reading has is to unbeaten Masconomet. We have played the best teams in the league.

Field Hockey team gets stung late in game

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The good news is that the Wilmington High field hockey team picked up its first point of the season on Monday with a tie.

However, the bad news is that it came against a team, North Reading, that has now gone 1-5-4 since becoming a varsity sport in the fall of 2003. But a point is a point.

"It's a start," said coach Carol Mutchler, whose team is now 0-5-1. Mutchler says that because last Thursday the 'Cats were defeated by Masconomet, 3-0, before ending in the tie with the Hornets.

"In the first 17 minutes of the Masco game we just very poorly," said Mutchler. "Masco scored three goals in that span and I called a timeout and I gave it to them because of the way they were playing. But in the last (13) minutes of the first half and the entire second half, we played very well. That was a game that I felt we could have

Second annual half marathon pours in over seven grand

overall with a time of 1:29.52. He like everyone else, watched Hudson, Mass., native Ryan Carrara completely dominate the field coming in at 1:12.58, which was just slightly under 15 minutes before the next runner, Arlington native John Wichers (1:27.52).

"I had a feeling coming in that I would be able to win it," said Carrara. "My training volume has been very high so I wasn't sure which (running) crowd would show up today. And with my body so high I didn't know if I could take it. I'm training for the Chicago Marathon (on Oct. 26) and last year I didn't run this because I wasn't training for a marathon."

Carrara ran for Holliston High School and graduated in 1994 before moving on to UMass-Amherst and running for the Minutemen over the next four years and graduating in 1998. He was since joined up with the New Balance running team. He has recently won several other road races but said he really wasn't sure what to expect out of this one.

"The humidity was really, really high for a good effort at 13.1 (miles) because your efficiency is really low when it's like this because you end up spending all of your energy cooling down and you don't spend as much energy moving forward," he said. "I had a feeling when I woke up this morning and walked out the door that the humidity was high and it would tinker me a little bit. But I'm not too disappointed that I finished two minutes slower than I wanted."

You would never thought he was going slow at any moment. He darted out quickly with the lead starting from Shady Lane Drive, before picking up a comfortable lead throughout the rest of the course landing on Salem Street, Lowell Street before hitting Wildwood Street, Federal Street and coming back down Middlesex Ave., with the finish line at RMA.

"There were three miles going up hill but basically the last two miles were all downhill so I was able to catch up there a bit and get more of a recovery coming down the hill," he said. "And whenever you see the finish line, you always do everything you can to get a pretty strong finish."

Warren was the top Wilmington resident to finish coming in third overall at 1:29.52.

"Tom (Pazyra) called me two weeks and asked me to run in the race because I won it last year," said Warren. "I was on the fence about it because I haven't done more than ten miles since doing a marathon last October. I got really beat up, took a month off and just tried to come back slow. But I came down this morning and wanted to do it because I put so much effort into it. Plus my family shows up and you feel obliged."

Now at age 44, Warren said that his body doesn't handle all of the miles like it used too.

"I started out a little faster than I should have," said Warren. "But then experience takes over and then you see everyone starting to settle. If you go out hard ahead of everyone you then have to hang on to keep up with them. It's tougher in a race like this because you're all by yourself. I had Mark Blaisdell with me. He's a very good runner but he did 11 hard miles yesterday (in another road race). He was with me for the first four or five miles and then he passed me, I caught him and then he told me to go ahead I'm done and that was around mile six."

And once the middle miles were in full tilt, Warren said he just tried to get through it the best he could.

"I heard this saying once that my brain wrote a check and my body needs to cash it," he said with a chuckle. "So I'm going to be paying for this for the next couple of weeks because I really haven't run all that much. I've been doing around 15 to 20 miles a week with 8 miles my long run. I mean I'll take what I can get and take my third place finish but at the same time I know I'm going to be hurting tomorrow."

After Warren, the next Wilmington resident to come across the line was Eric Cushing, who was 9th overall at 1:35.47. He said that in June he participated in a half marathon running Mount Washington and that his time was three minutes slower in Wilmington. But he thought this is a good measuring stick as he prepares for the Cape Cod Marathon next month.

"Under these conditions, I am happy with the results," said the 35-year-old. "The first mile was the toughest. It's always the toughest to start. This was harder today with the heat and the wind."

The rest of the Wilmington male finishers include: Mark Blaisdell (11th; 1:36.42); Paul Maiella (16th, 1:39.35); Dave DeRosa (18th, 1:39.35); Chris Ward (21st, 1:42.47); Kevin Yetman (31st, 1:46.42); David Proulx (35th, 1:50.29); Kenny McGowan (50th, 1:56.39); Kevin Carpenito (61st, 2:06.23); Steven Zuccaro (66th, 2:09.04); Tom Dunn (76th, 2:13.53) and Mike Carli (95th, 2:21.28).

As for the female finishers, three resided from Wilmington including Lisa Hodge, who finished 62nd overall at 2:06.47, followed by Julie Cronin (69th, 2:10.27), Dorothy Larffarello (98th, 2:24.04) and Sheila Burke (99th at 2:34.02).

"This was a great course," said Hodge. "We had a beautiful breeze and the Wilmington cheerleaders were wonderful cheering us on."

Hodge is no stranger to road races with an armful and then some of marathons and big races, and said it's just something she really enjoys doing.

"I run pretty much every other day around six to eight miles and then on the week-ends I'll do a long run," she said. "But it doesn't matter to me if it's rain, sun, snow, blizzard, sleet, I'm out there running somewhere. If it's my day to run, I'm out there running."

Tewksbury had several representatives as well. Mike Doherty led the way with his 30th overall finish coming in at 1:46.13. David Jones was 47th (1:55.05), followed by Gregory Stratis (57th, 2:02.02) and Debbie Evangelista (86th, 2:17.00).

"It was a good race," said Doherty, who has done the Boston Marathon in each of the past three years. "It was nice. You felt like you were out in the middle of nowhere but it was nice. Last year I didn't do this race because I sprained my ankle right before it. And just this past Sunday I ruptured my calf. I iced it all week but around mile nine it started to get tight and I could feel it. It wasn't bad. I was suppose to do seven more miles but I'm not going to do it. I'm doing the Bay State Marathon (in Lowell next month) and I already signed up for the Disney Marathon (so I want to be rested for those)."

Doherty, like many of the other runners, said the heat was a little much.

"I'm not a warm weather runner," he said. "The heat kills me. I did the first two miles in seven and a half mile pace and I should never have did it. After that I stopped for the men's room and then I tried to catch up to my buddies with this sprint and I was just saying to myself what am I doing? My buddy Dave then said he would run with me and we were together for the next six miles or so but the heat was killing me. I never run without a shirt on because of that complex but at mile eight I said here it comes off and I put my (bid) number on my shorts but I was dying."

"I was going to run today no matter what. Even if it wasn't in this race I would have been out there running. But this is nice. You're out here with water stops and you don't have to hide water in the woods and this was perfect. It was a fun race."

Wilmington resident Eric Cushing finished ninth overall during Sunday's second annual half marathon race which raised over $7,000.

Shawsheen Tech Football

Fullerton's ground game leads Rams to second win

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

BILLERICA — The Shawsheen Tech football team appears to be rounding into the form that has made them one of the traditional favorites in the Commonwealth Athletic Conference Large Division.

On Saturday afternoon against Georgetown High School at Samuel J. Cassidy Field the Rams used the weapon that has become their staple in recent years with a powerful running attack that overwhelmed the visitors and led to a 32-14 victory over their rivals from the CAC Small.

The win improved the Rams record to 2-1 on the season, while Georgetown fell to 2-1.

Junior Pat Fullerton led the way on the ground for the Rams, rushing for 197 yards and two touchdowns before leaving the game with an injury in the third quarter. In his stead, freshman Chris Clark continued his impressive introduction to varsity football, rushing for 111 yards and a pair of touchdowns on his own.

It was the first home game of the season for the Rams, who will play only four of their 11 regular season games at Cassidy Field.

"It was a great win for us, and it was important for us to establish ourselves at home," Shawsheen coach Al Costabile said.

The Rams held a comfortable, but certainly not insurmountable 19-7 lead at halftime, and went to work quickly in the second half on making the lead more secure.

On the first play from scrimmage of the half, Fullerton broke a brilliant 67 yard run to extend the lead to 25-7, breaking tackles in the secondary and finally pulling away from one last defender who had hold of his jersey before sprinting the remaining 50 or so yards to paydirt.

Georgetown, who entered the game coming off a pair of impressive wins, including a 42-23 win over Pingree the week before, in which they scored 26 second half points in the second half, was not about to give up and they fought back to within 11 points on their first series of the half.

The Royals put together a seven play, 60 yard drive and capped it when quarterback Joe Esposito fought his way through the Shawsheen line for a three yard run to make the score 25-14 with 6:08 left in the third quarter after the extra point.

The Rams looked like they would go in for another score on their next possession, driving to the Georgetown 12 yard line after a 17 yard run by Fullerton, but the drive ended two plays later with a Georgetown interception in the end zone. Fullerton sustained what appeared to be a neck injury on his 17 yard run, his final carry of the game. He appeared ok on the sideline later in the game, but did not return.

With Fullerton out, Clark took over full time in the backfield and once again made the most of his opportunity. After starting last week's game due to a Fullerton injury and rushing for 196 yards, he once again showed the talent of a more experienced player when he got his chance in this game.

After the Rams forced Georgetown to punt late in the quarter, they took over on their own 42 yard line and proceeded to go on a game clinching 13 play, 63 yard drive, with Clark accounting for 58 of the yards on the ground and capping the drive with a two yard burst over the right side of the Rams line for his sixth touchdown of the season with 5:38 to go in the game. Ryan McLaughlin of Tewksbury nailed the extra point for what would be the final of 32-14.

"I thought our offensive line picked up right where they left off in the second half of our last game," Costabile said. "They established the line of scrimmage and our backs all did a great job."

While the running game is what led the Rams to victory, they actually mixed the run and the pass very well early in the game.

On their first possession of the game, the Rams took advantage of great field position and marched 36 yards on nine plays to take a 6-0 lead on a nine yard touchdown pass from quarterback Joe Gore of Wilmington to receiver Joe Killion of Tewksbury with 6:30 left in the first quarter. Gore was 3-for-4 on the drive for 23 yards.

After a Joel Mignault interception on the Royals next possession, the Rams were back at offensively, this time mainly relying on the running of Fullerton who rushed for 35 yards on a nine play 58 yard drive and capped the drive with a 13 yard run with 38 seconds left in the opening quarter, running over would be tacklers on his way to the end zone.

A failed two point conversion try left the Rams with a 12-0 lead. Georgetown put together an impressive drive to pull within 12-7, marching 75 yards in 11 plays and capping the drive on an Esposito 32 yard touchdown pass to Dave Leahy, but the Rams quickly extended their lead back to 12 with 4:42 left in the half.

On a drive which featured a 20 yard completion from Gore to Shawn Pimentel and a 23 yard run by Fullerton down to the two yard line, Clark did the honors of putting the ball in the end zone on a two yard off tackle run.

Shawsheen Rams running back Pat Fullerton led the football team to a victory on Saturday afternoon over Georgetown.

Rams look to exterminate the Hornets

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech football team will look to continue their winning ways this weekend when they host their second straight CAC Small Division rival at Samuel J. Cassidy Field at 1:30 on Saturday afternoon.

The Rams (2-1), who play in the CAC Large, are coming off a convincing 32-14 win over Georgetown of the CAC Small and would like a repeat performance of their effort in that game when they rolled up 341 rushing yards.

Manchester meanwhile enters the game in what will likely be a very foul mood, having suffered their first loss of the season last week, by a score of 45-0 to non-league rival Mystic Valley.

The Hornets had won their first two games of the season, scoring a 27-8 non-league win over Pope John in their season opener and following that up with a 29-14 win over CAC Small rival Greater Lawrence in week 2.

Senior quarterback Paul Martyn runs the show for the Hornets on offense, and has accounted for five touchdowns on the young season, running for three and throwing for two.

The three touchdown runs all came again Pope John when he scored on scampers of 11, 12 and 50 yards to help secure the victory. Against Greater Lawrence Martin tossed scoring passes of 12 yards to junior tight end Scott Forsythe and 17 yards to junior split end Sam Cohen.

Last season the Rams had little trouble in Manchester against the Hornets, rolling to a 44-18 victory that saw Shawsheen score the first 44 points of the game and take their 44-0 lead on the first play of the first half on a 68 yard run by David Albano.

Then senior Kyle Marzeotti rushed for 96 yards on just five carries, including a 77 yard run for a touchdown on the Rams first play from scrimmage. Fellow senior Ken Aalerud of Tewksbury had already gotten the Rams on the board at that point with a 50 yard punt return for a touchdown in the opening minutes.

Manchester struggled to a 2-9 record last season, but it was a very young team with only six seniors on the entire roster, and they were also missing both of their senior captains when they squared off against the Rams.

Rams golfers chip way to front of the league

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech golf team is closing in on a second consecutive Commonwealth Athletic Conference title, but they took a break from their league dominance in their last two matches to try their skills against a pair of non-league opponents.

As it turns out, it hardly matters the season who the Rams are playing as they simply continue their winning ways regardless of the opponent. The Rams were tested for the first time all season in the two non league contests, but the results were the same as they defeated both Waltham (last Thursday) and Arlington (Monday) by identical scores of 5-4 to improve their record on the season to 8-0. Both matches were held at Patriot Golf Course in Bedford.

"These were both great matches," Shawsheen coach Tom Struthers said. "They both gave us a good scare. A lot of teams in our league are rebuilding this year, so it was different facing these teams. All eight players they send out there are awesome."

The Rams have an awesome player of their own in junior co-captain Brandon Porter and he had those talents on full display against Arlington Monday, shooting a 35 over the nine holes. But proving Struthers' point about the great competition, the score was only good enough to earn him a tie against his opponent at the No. 1 position.

"Brandon played great as usual, but the kid he played against was incredible too," Struthers said.

D.J. Shepherd at No. 2 and freshman Brett Fredrickson at No. 5 did pick up wins in their matches, with Shepherd coming out on top 5.5 -3.5 and Fredrickson taking his match 5-4. Both golfers remained undefeated on the season. They also combined to take the best ball competition for their pairing.

"D.J. has done a great job as

Volleyball team off to a jumping start

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech volleyball team is off to a better than expected start as they pass the 1/3 mark of their season. After going 6-12 last season, the Lady Rams are off to a 5-2 start this year mainly behind the efforts of their two senior leaders, Julie Raymond and Jacqui Salemi.

Shawsheen has run off three straight wins to get their mark to 5-2, with their most recent win coming in a blowout 3-0 win at Cathedral on Monday.

The win over the inexperienced squad from Cathedral was much different than the hard fought battle at Fellowship last Friday when the Lady Rams won 3-2, (25-20, 25-22, 24-26, 9-25, 15-9), coming back to win the final game that point, I emptied the bench and substituted two of the starters out at a time to kind of let them get their heads together.

While the third game ended in a blowout, Flynn's strategy in the way she has played all year."

Against Chelsea, Shawsheen was much more dominant, playing one of the better games against a bit of a weaker opponent and the results were pre-

Girls soccer team wins its fourth straight game

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Girls soccer team is another team at the Tech that is on quite a roll. With their 3-1 win at CAC rival Minuteman on Monday afternoon the Lady Rams have won four straight games and have a 5-2 overall record on the season (4-1 in the CAC).

First year coach Doug Michaud has been pleased with his team's success to this point, but if some observers are surprised that a young team with a first year coach is having so much success, then Michaud does not share their view.

"I had heard through the grapevine that this was a good team last year and I knew we had some talented players," Michaud said. "I knew we had lost some good seniors, but I felt that skill wise we would still be OK. I thought we could do as well as they did last year."

Well, after Monday's win it would be hard to argue with Michaud's assessment. The win wrapped up a 3-0 week for Shawsheen, who rolled over Lynn Tech by a score of 8-0 last Friday and got past Northeast 2-0 last Wednesday.

Against Minuteman the Lady Rams broke a 1-1 halftime tie to come away with the victory. Second half goals were scored on penalty kick by Heather Masse and by freshman Jenna Zechner on an assist from Stephanie Walsh. The goal was Zechner's 20th point of the season, leading the Lady Rams.

Senior captain Kayla O'Leary continued what was a very impressive week for her, scoring Shawsheen's first goal on a penalty kick in the first half.

Junior goalie Kim Stockton of Tewksbury made seven saves to earn the victory, with the only goal she allowed coming on a first half penalty kick by Minuteman. Since leaving midway through a game against Greater Lowell with a head injury, and missing the next game against PMA, Stockton has returned in excellent form, allowing one goal in the past three games and turning aside 14 of 15 shots she has faced while posting shutouts in two of the three games.

"She really did very well today," Michaud said after the win over Minuteman. "She is definitely a presence for us in the back. Her last two games I think she was still a little injured and finding her way back, but today she was back at full strength against a good team and holding her own back there."

Against Lynn Tech there was not a lot for Stockton to do, as Shawsheen did not allow any official shots on net. While the defense was playing great in front of Stockton, the offense was rolling from the opening whistle, particularly O'Leary who scored four goals to lead her team.

While freshmen like Zechner and Wilmington's Jenn Carroll have been deservedly grabbing many of the headlines for their offensive prowess, O'Leary has been vital to the team as a leader and Michaud was happy to see her get on the board offensively.

"I felt happy for her to see her score some goals," Michaud said. "She has never shown any disappointment, but I think it makes her feel good as a captain that she can contribute by scoring as well."

Carroll had a goal and three assists in the victory, while Tewksbury's Janel Madore added two goals.

Volleyball coach Chet Flynn looks on from the bench during last week's CAC game played at Shawsheen Tech High School.

after dropping games three and four.

Despite his team dropping two straight games in the middle of the match, Shawsheen coach Chet Flynn was confident that they would bounce back in the fifth and final game.

"Fellowship is the type of team that plays conservative and keeps the ball up and forces the other team to make mistakes," Flynn said. "So even though there were close scores in the first three games, I really felt like we were in control except for a few mistakes."

After losing the third game by the narrowest of margins, the Lady Rams were blown out in game 4, a combination of the obvious emotional letdown of coming so close to sweeping the match as well as a strategic move by Flynn.

"There may have been an emotional letdown because right from the outset we were down 11-3," Flynn said. "But at paid off, as all of his starters returned for the fifth game and the Lady Rams rolled to victory."

"We jumped out to an early lead and we maintained it," Flynn said. "One of the things that impressed me most is that when I took the starters out they were on the bench cheering for the other kids, keeping their heads in the game. They went back in with a totally different perspective."

Raymond was outstanding throughout the match, with six aces and stellar play at her setter position. Salemi meanwhile, had five kills to help the Lady Rams to the win.

"Jacqui was hitting the ball nice and deep and not allowing them to return hit. She has also shown tremendous leadership with the younger players this season," Flynn said. "Julie has been very consistent all year. She takes the game very seriously whether it's in practice or in a game and it shows dictable with a 3-0 victory (25-7, 25-12, 25-13).

"Chelsea is not as strong as they have been in the past, but unlike some of the weaker teams we have played in the past they were very competitive," Flynn said. "We came to play and played very well."

At 5-2, with their only two losses coming to CAC powerhouses PMA and Greater Lawrence, the Lady Rams appear to be ahead of schedule and Flynn is happy with where his team is at this point of the season.

"I am pleased mainly because of the Fellowship win," Flynn said. "That is one of those matches going into the season that you know you are going to have to win if you want to have a very good year. We have another one like that against Greater Lowell next week. Winning those matches can make a big difference to your season."

a co-captain and as our No. 2 player. He would be No. 1 on almost any other team," Struthers said. "And Brett has been great. You can always rely on him to pick up a point."

Sophomore Jon McDonald of Tewksbury continued his fine season with a 5-4 win, shooting a 43 from his No. 6 position.

"It was good to see John play so well," Struthers said. "He has done very well for us." Against Waltham, the Rams got an outstanding effort from Shepherd who was the match medalist with an even-par 35, along with Steve Tell of Wilmington who shot a season best 37.

"Steve has been playing great," Struthers said. "He lost his match to Arlington, but even in that one he shot a 41. He has worked hard and come a long way. At the start of the season he was shooting 46, and he brought it all the way down to 37 against Waltham."

After a return match with Waltham at Leo Martin Golf Course in Bedford on Wednesday the Rams will play primarily a league schedule down the stretch. Struthers knows another title is there for the taking if his team continues playing the way they are.

"I believe the league title is ours," Struthers said. "I don't see anyone competing with us because these guys are playing darn good golf. But you never know. You can have an off day and anything can happen so you always have to be at your best."

Wildcat boys score some revenge

Wilmington has now posted back-to-back shut outs, outscoring Newburyport and North Reading 7-0, which came after losing the team's first three games without scoring a goal.

"Seriously I thought (North Reading) was ready to be had," said coach Steve Scanlon. "They were 4-0-2 and things were going their way and they weren't scored upon. Naturally you get cocky, especially when you're a high school kid. I told my team that I wanted to see (North Reading) play from behind. So let's go out, get one early and see how they react."

And that's just what happened. Wilmington scored three first half goals, two of which coming in the first 12 minutes. The first came as Mike Condell was fouled just outside the '18. The indirect kick was taken by Matt Figueiredo, who tapped it over to Condell and he blasted the ball into the back of the net to what proved to be the game winning goal.

Shortly thereafter, the 'Cats made it a two goal game. In a pile up in front, Jason Perreira was able to get a toe on the ball and push it past the keeper.

Then just a few minutes before the halftime break, Perreira nailed his second goal, blasting a gorgeous shot from just outside the '18 to the far right top corner making it a 3-0 game.

North Reading held the edge for the first handful of minutes in the second half, including Wildcat keeper Vinny Papageorgiou making a sensational diving tip save.

"That was a 10-bell save," said Scanlon. "Had they scored on that, the complexion of the game completely changes. But I think that save took some wind out of (North Reading's) sails."

The 'Cats slammed the door shut on another impressive goal with 14 minutes to go. Starting with a transition ball at midfield, the 'Cats gave off three passes until Mike Condell came in off the left side and put the finishing touches on the feed making it 4-0.

"We shot the ball well," said Scanlon. "And lately we have been shooting the ball well. That was something that was hurting us early on. I think some of (the offensive problems) was inaccurate shooting. We have been working on some stuff in practice to shoot better and maybe it paid off. I think some of it also had to do with having a lot of new kids on the field and trying to get to know each other."

"I think we're going to be OK. Once we settle down. We've had good spirits all season long. Even in the losses we played well but there were some tough breaks. We're moving the ball around (offensively) which is what I want to see."

Jason Serino, Jonathan Spurr and Figueiredo picked up assists. Defensively, Wilmington was very strong with Gott Saenchandi, J.J. Polcari, Nick Robarge and Nick Farnsworth leading the way while midfielder Andrew Goosens also played well.

"We're pretty solid defensively and that's our strength," said Scanlon. "My backs are good."

On Friday afternoon, Wilmington blanked Newburyport, 3-0, notching the team's first victory of the season. Condell scored a pair of goals while Matt Figueiredo added a goal and an assist. Spurr contributed with one assist. Papageorgiou made six saves to earn the shut out. Teammate Chris Azevedo also played well.

Wilmington will travel to face Pentucket Regional (3-2-2) on Thursday and then travel to Billerica for a nonleague game Saturday afternoon beginning at 1:00 pm. Wilmington will be back home on Wednesday night against North Andover (4-1-2) beginning at 7:00 pm.

Wilmington High sophomore midfielder Jonathan Spurr controls the ball during Tuesday night's 4-0 win over the previously unbeaten and unscored upon North Reading Hornets played under the lights at Alumni Field.

Golfers putting behind

and putting and we looked very young in those aspects," Rowinski said. "We made some mistakes, like putting when we should have been chipping. You've got to make points all the way through and we did not do that."

On the positive side, the Wildcats got their best performance of the day from sophomore Mike Chiricosta who scored 31 points to add to what has been an outstanding season.

"Mike played real well yesterday and pretty well today (20 points)," Rowinski said on Tuesday. "I can't really say I am surprised because he played very well for us last year, but he has been much more consistent this season."

Freshman Nick Boutoures also has been playing well for the Wildcats, posting 20 points against North Reading and another 18 against Hamilton-Wenham, and junior Allen Dooley scored 20 points in a match last week against North Andover.

"Nick has got some ability and he is going to get better as his career goes on," Rowinski said. "Allen is playing better, but he has been a little inconsistent. But he is a kid who only got into a couple of matches last year, so I think through the rest of this year and into next year, he will continue to improve."

Of course, with all of these young players, it is sometimes easy to forget the player at the top of the lineup for the Wildcats, senior Jason Evans. Evans scored 28 points against North Reading and had another 25 against Hamilton-Wenham, and has been outing up those kinds of numbers all season long.

"Jason is a true NO. 1 player," Rowinski said. "And he is also a great captain to the younger kids on the team. He is so consistent. Anyone can have a bad day, but he just has not had one this season. He is just a great player."

After Monday's very tough loss, Rowinski was pleased with the way his team came out and played on Tuesday at Myopia Country Club. They did not win, but they also did hang their heads from the day before.

"Myopia is one of the toughest courses in the country, never mind just in our league," Rowinski said. "And they came out and put up 117 points. We had five kids score 18 or more points. We are definitely playing better than the start of the year and we have something to build on for the future."

After slow start, girls knock down North Reading

"It shouldn't be like this. There is some fundamental flaw that I'm missing. I can't figure it out. The more and more I see them play, I do think that conditioning might be an issue. And that's my fault for not pushing them at the start of the season."

In the 10th minute of Friday's game, one of the Newburyport players went down with a dislocated kneecap forcing the ambulance to come and the game was delayed for about 15 minutes. When play resumed, Wilmington got on the scoreboard just two minutes later as Brianne Bozzella scored off her own corner kick which banked off the goalie and bounced into the net. That gave Wilmington a 1-0 lead.

Newburyport came back before the first half was over to tie the game, and then opened it up with four goals in the second half.

On Tuesday night, Wilmington returned home and defeated North Reading, 3-0, and played a much better, crisper and all-around game.

"It was a very good game for us," said Hendee. "We played for all 80 minutes and that was the difference. We played good soccer for all 80 minutes and without question that's why we won."

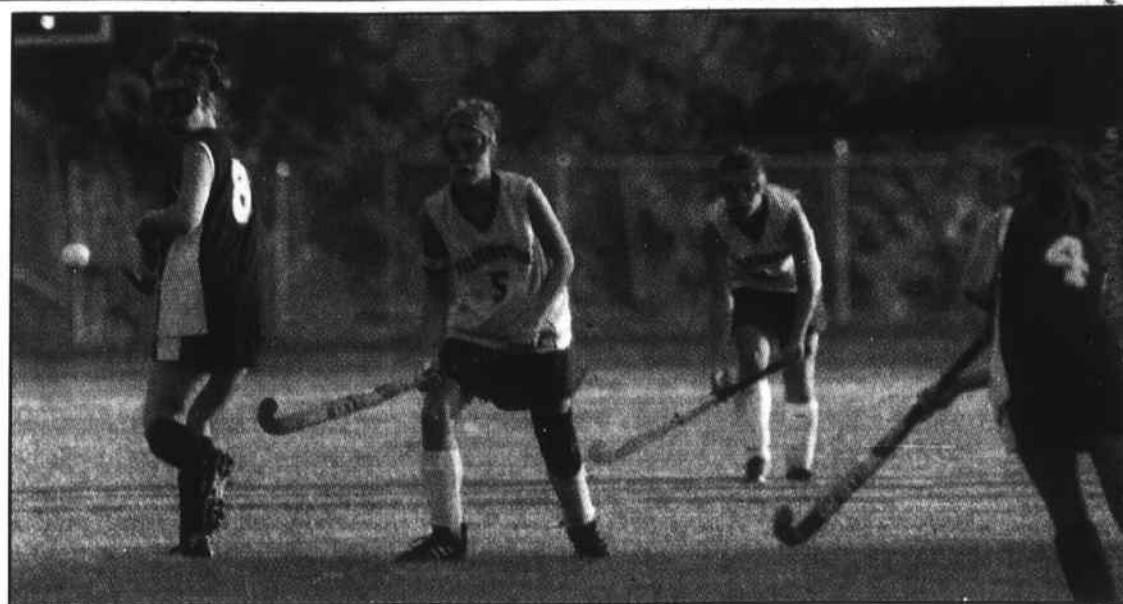

Freshman Brittney McLaughlin played a terrific game and she scored the first goal which was set up by Danielle Bamberg. Katie Cole then scored the second and third goals, both coming in the second half with helpers going to Taryn Martinello and Brianne Bozzella. Goal keeper Leah Pochner made six saves to record the shut out.

"Leah did a nice job," said Hendee. "She wasn't as challenged as much tonight as she was the last time we played them, but she did a nice job coming off her line."

In front of Pochner, was a strong defensive unit comprised of Samantha Canning, Alana Lacey, Martinello, Amanda Stone and Leah DelRossi.

"The defense was very good all game," said Hendee.

Wilmington is back home on Thursday afternoon facing Pentucket Regional (3-3-1) at the Shawshen School in the afternoon. Thereafter the 'Cats are off for six days before facing North Andover (4-0-2), before hitting a stretch of games against Hamilton-Wenham, Ipswich and Manchester-Essex, who have one combined win.

won."

That same scenario happened on Monday afternoon when the 'Cats traveled next door to face North Reading. Wilmington got on the scoreboard first when Cassie Doherty put home a cross off a corner. But like last week when the 'Cats lost to Triton, North Reading scored a goal in the final few minutes to come away with the tie.

"What we have been working on in practice is positioning and marking players in the circle," said Mutchler. "And I don't know if that was the reason why we scored, but hey we'll take it."

Goaltender Katie Reilly played well making 16 saves. Also giving a solid effort in front of her include midfielders

Katie Arsenault a senior, with the junior trio of Gabrielle Collins, Nicole Engram and Sasha Reilly. Back Kristine Cassim also played well and continues to improve.

Wilmington is back in action with a road trip to Georgetown on Friday, followed by a home game next Monday against Lynnfield beginning at 3:45 pm.

Motivation can make miracles

A HAPPY DIANNE CHWALISZEWSKI walks down the aisle with her father John before her marriage to Thomas Tremblay.

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

The proper power of the proper motivation is an awesome might and, in the case of Reading's Peter Sanborn Place resident John Chwaliszewski, the proper motivation was the wish to "walk" his daughter, Dianne, down the aisle at her wedding to Thomas Tremblay.

Chwaliszewski had suffered a stroke five years ago and a setback last year had placed him into a wheelchair. As the result of a circulation problem Chwaliszewski's toe had to be removed and it was difficult to be mobile.

Chwaliszewski's stroke has not affected his mental acumen. However, it has affected several physical abilities including his speech and therefore Lynne Toothaker, Peter Sanborn Place's resident services and programs manager explained much of the former engineer's story.

The Big Day

"After losing his toe John was so weak he hasn't been able to walk for close to a year," Toothaker said. "With no one knowing, he worked on his own to get on his feet. He had a target date of August 28 to walk his daughter down the aisle."

Summoning up his strength, Chwaliszewski said, "I walked with (a quad cane) three times (per-day) up and down the hallways. I worked at it everyday. I moved slowly."

Peter Sanborn is a close community of elders and people with disabilities where the people watch out for their neighbors. Although Chwaliszewski was attempting this on his own, it wasn't long before a neighbor noticed the daily treks and told Toothaker about them.

At that point, she allowed available staff to follow Chwaliszewski on his trips with a wheelchair just in case. However, it never became necessary.

He started his workout program in July and by the target date Chwaliszewski was not only able to walk Dianne down the aisle, he also took part in the traditional father daughter dance. Dianne did not know any of this would happen until the rehearsal prior to the wedding Chwaliszewski said.

"My daughter was surprised," Chwaliszewski said. "She went 'oh wow!'"

As to how this has affected Chwaliszewski, Toothaker said, "About eight months ago he was in a real slump and he has made an amazing comeback."

However, this was not the first time Toothaker has seen the power of motivation work on Chwaliszewski. For the first two years after suffering his stroke, which he does not know the cause of, he was in a local nursing home.

The administration at the facility had advised a family member to place Chwaliszewski's name on the waiting list at Peter Sanborn. When an apartment became available, Toothaker and another staff member went to interview Chwaliszewski to see if he would be a good fit.

Toothaker recalled, "He was sitting in a wheelchair just watching television and I questioned his level of independence."

However, the ensuing conversations with Chwaliszewski showed that first impressions are not always correct. When he learned of his chance to leave the nursing home and move into the supportive living facility he became very animated.

"I have never regretted the decision," Toothaker said. "He is an intelligent guy with a masters in engineering."

"There he was stuck in a nursing home sitting in a wheelchair. He has come a long way."

Chwaliszewski now is a regular participant in the many activities that occur at Peter Sanborn. He likes the arts and crafts sessions and is often taking the (MBTA) Ride to a movie or to visit his father at a nursing home in Salem.

Chwaliszewski said that prior to his stroke he had worked at Teradyne and General Electric. He was also an avid reader and liked to SCUBA (Self Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus) dive.

Toothaker said he does odd jobs, within his limitations around Peter Sanborn and keeps a caring, watchful eye on the other residents.

"If he thinks someone is having a hard time he makes me aware of it," Toothaker said.

One of Chwaliszewski's favorite activities is to go on the Sanborn Place van, recently donated to the group home by Reading Rotary, to take part in shopping trips and other outside activities.

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"ALL THE KING'S MEN" FASCINATING

IN THIS PHOTO PROVIDED BY COLUMBIA PICTURES, an idealistic southern politician, "Boss" Willie Stark (Sean Penn), who appeals to the common man whilst effectively playing dirty politics, slowly becomes corrupted by the system in "All The Kings Men."

"ALL THE KING'S MEN"

GRADE: **

All the King's Men" is a fascinating look at the dark side of politics.

It's beautiful to look at and listen to, and well acted by Sean Penn and Jude Law.

The only problem is it's hard to care what happens to a hero that is at the same time sleazy.

For all the things it does right, Steven Zaillian's new adaptation of Robert Penn Warren's Pulitzer-winning novel is a letdown where it really counts. It fails to deliver a gripping emotional experience.

The rise of small-town activist Willie Stark (Penn) to the governorship of Louisiana - and the corruption he picks up along the way - is loosely based on the life of Huey Long, the Louisiana governor assassinated in 1935.

As in the book and 1949 film version, we witness Stark through the eyes of Jack Burden (Law), a jaded newspaperman and son of Louisiana gentry who starts out championing Stark's attacks on the political establishment. Soon Jack finds himself co-opted, becoming one of Stark's closest advisers.

At first Penn's Willie Stark is a rawboned bumpkin, earnest about reform and a boring speaker. But when Stark realizes he's merely being used by the bosses to siphon votes away from another rural candidate, he's transformed into a fire-breathing, stage-stalking, fist-pounding political whirlwind. He promises to pave rural roads, provide free books to schoolchildren, build public hospitals, tax the oil companies and throw the elitists out on their ears.

Later scenes show Stark, now facing an impeachment vote, attending a nighttime rally like something out of Hitler's Germany.

It's great stuff, but Stark's transition from defender of the people to corrupt politician seems abrupt, and the film never explains why Jack continues to compromise himself by remaining in Stark's employ. Especially when Stark sends him to threaten Jack's godfather, a retired judge (Anthony Hopkins) who opposes the governor's strongarm methods.

James Gandolfini has a few fine moments as a smug political hack.

"All the King's Men" starts out strong and then evaporates.

"THE BLACK DAHLIA"

GRADE: **

It's natural to have high expectations for "The Black Dahlia," with a director Brian De Palma attached to it and the laundry list of stars in it. James Ellroy's novel that the film is based on is also considered one of his finest. Failing to meet those expectations doesn't make De Palma's film bad, just a bit disappointing.

Known as The Black Dahlia for her taste in black fashion, 22-year-old aspiring actress Elizabeth Short (a Medford native) found fame only in death, as the victim in Los Angeles' most notorious unsolved murder case. Her bisected body was found on Jan. 15, 1947, its organs removed, blood drained, mouth slit from ear to ear in a hideous grin. Her killer was never found, and Ellroy's novel builds its speculative plot around two L.A. cops whose lives unravel in the course of their investigation.

Former boxers Lee Blanchard (Aaron Eckhart) and "Bucky" Bleichert (Josh Hartnett, simmering nicely) were known as "Fire & Ice" as rivals in the ring. Now they're newly partnered detectives, sharing a platonic passion for Kay Lake (Scarlett Johansson), the former girlfriend of a killer Lee sent to jail.

Jacked on Benzedrine and obsessed with Short's murder, Lee goes into a psychological tailspin (relegating Eckhart's fine performance to the sidelines) while Bucky enters the treacherous orbit of Madeleine Linscott it's DIFFERENT By How?

ANSWERS: SHIRT, CLOUT, BOOK, EAR, TOOTH, TAIL, BUSH.

(Hilary Swank), a socialite with a freak-show family, including a mother driven batty by knowledge of L.A. corruption.

"The Black Dahlia" boasts a few clever inventions. By showing "Betty" Short in screen-test flashbacks (played with sad vulnerability by Mia Kirshner, with De Palma voicing her off-screen director), she becomes the movie's tragic heart and soul, immortalized for all the wrong reasons.

The crucial performances of Johansson and Swank are awkward, though these are actresses with skill who seem reduced here to hollow play-acting, dolled up in Oscar-worthy costumes.

Despite these and other weaknesses, "The Black Dahlia" remains curiously fascinating.

"THE WICKER MAN"

GRADE: **

This remake of the 1970s horror film follows Nicolas Cage as Officer Edward Malus, a disturbed cop that has decided to investigate the disappearance of an ex-girlfriend's daughter on a remote island inhabited by a strange cult. The members of the cult are less than helpful to Malus as he snoops and pries into their affairs. When he thinks he has found out what has happened to the girl, he starts to uncover a secret that he will wish he hadn't learned.

Unfortunately, the studio and filmmakers actually thought that this might attract audiences looking for a good fright. Instead, they created an embarrassing film that will haunt the careers of Cage, LaBute, and Warner Brothers

About the Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

POLITICS, SENIORS, OFFICERS, AND GENTLEPEOPLE

Peer grouping (Winchester)

"Just as the town has compared itself in a variety of ways to the same or nearly the same group of 10 or more communities over the years, a Wakefield firm, Municipal Benchmarking, worked with Town Hall to collect and analyze budget data," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The owner of the company, Tom Cronin, a Winchester resident, told the Board of Selectmen and Town Manager Mel Kleckner, saying Municipal Benchmarking exists to fill a need for cities and towns to have more data. Calling the company's role as an 'honest broker,' Cronin said it is not that the firm believes in cost cutting, but because the town runs an approximately $60 million budget with no competitive information. The idea is to find which communities are most like your own and to compare and contrast the budget choices and priorities that they reflect."

"Kleckner said a key aspect of the final report that was expected by the end of the summer is an improvement in budget data evaluation."

"Ken Strachan, Municipal Benchmarking's general manager, told the board and a number of 'stakeholders,' that Kleckner referred to them (i.e., representatives of the Finance Committee, Planning Board, School Committee and Capital Planning, though others may also have been present) that the firm's goal was to be a 'yardstick.' To allow Winchester to compare itself, on 'an apples to apples' basis."

"Strachan said the firm 'has no agenda, we paint a picture of what is, you can decide what it ought to be.'"

"The budget data is collected from a number of sources, including state departments of Revenue and Education, census figures and from the communities themselves. Strachan noted that some sources are more reliable than others. The town, and for that matter all of the state's 351 cities and towns, are then analyzed by socio-economic, demographic and geographic traits. That illustrates, 'where do our resources come from,' Strachan said...."

"According to the preliminary report, the communities which vary from Winchester are in order of most like Winchester: Belmont, Marblehead, Westwood, Reading, Milton, Needham, Wayland, Melrose, Arlington, Longmeadow, Scituate, Wellesley, Lynnfield, Swampscott, Bedford, Hingham, Natick, Canton, Wakefield and Medfield."

"One of the first questions from the board was where's Lexington? Strachan said that it was close to the first 20, it was number 23, but the difference was most likely its much higher commercial tax base, the land area and its birth rate."

"Cronin called these 20 Winchester's peer group...."

Peer power (Burlington)

"It was about this time last year when David LeBlanc realized he was onto something big," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"But, at the same time, he faced a quandary, he said."

"LeBlanc and Felix Costanza, Burlington residents, had worked to develop the Club-55 Plus group for seniors, where those over age 55 can take part in sports and other activities."

"People expressed interest, LeBlanc stated, but the program needed a boost."

"We began this in 2004, working with the seniors in Burlington," said LeBlanc. "We were looking for a sports-minded program in Burlington."

"LeBlanc went on to say that 'the Club-55 Plus went over OK the first year. But, we felt we needed something extra.'"

"LeBlanc said he contacted the Recreation Department, speaking with Assistant Recreation Director William Boudreau."

"Bill was very enthused about it and felt the program could be a great help to the seniors," LeBlanc stated. "We've expanded through the Recreation Department, and now we want to explode it in Burlington."

"There are no fees to register," LeBlanc went on to say. "If you pay, you play."

"LeBlanc said that means there are fees only for certain sports like golf and bowling. There is no flat registration fee."

"It is for Burlington residents only."

"Most of the things are free, such as hiking, walking, and tennis," Boudreau said. "We will soon have more specific information about tennis, when it is going to start. We will send it out."

"If you want to join, go to the Recreation Department and fill out a registration form, and it doesn't cost a bloody thing," said LeBlanc...."

Peer leaders (Reading)

"The Reading Rotary Club held its installation of officers recently and John Douglass of Douglass Edgerley & Bessom Funeral Home was installed as the 84th president of the club that was started in Reading in 1924," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The event was held at the Café Escadrille in Burlington as those attending, including John's family, dined on prime rib of roast beef or chicken."

"John's installation was conducted by immediate past president Pete Smargon. In addition to Douglass other officers installed were: Lynne Toothacker, Peter Sanborn Place, President Elect; Don Washburn, formerly of MassBank, Vice President; Brian Crosby, Crosby and Crosby, Accountant's Treasurer; and Sandra Gass, Peter Sanborn Place, Secretary."

"Upwards of 100 persons attended the gala event which was held in a private room. Music was provided by Readingite Tom Smith."

"John Douglass' wife Laurie and two children were also on hand as were his parents and one sister."

"With the motto 'Service Above Self,' the Reading Rotary has been conducting community projects since its inception. The most recent major project was a five year commitment to buy a passenger van for Peter Sanborn Place and other needy persons in Reading."

"Through the years, the Reading Rotary has also been the single largest donor to the Reading High Scholarship Fund. Other projects include: tree saplings to every 5th grader in Reading every year, Rotary Square at the Depot, defibrillators for the Fire Department, a golf cart for the Reading High School Band and many others...."

School Notes

by Phyllis Nissen

LOTS OF ACTION AND SOME TALK

Communicating in Wilmington

"Splitting boards with their feet was the culmination of the Martial Arts Empowerment Program for sixth grade Middle School students who recently completed a leadership empowerment program," notes the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"For the second year, the Wilmington Family Counseling Service, Inc., offered this program under the auspices of a United Way of Merrimack Valley grant. The group is a collaboration with the Wilmington Public Schools and Master James Kenney Silver Lake ATA Taekwondo.

"The 22 students were energized by the martial arts experience for which they earned orange belts as well as the group discussions in which they learned leadership skills like respecting others and themselves, communicating in ways others will hear, and asserting themselves positively.

"My son thoroughly enjoyed this program. He was proud of himself and it added to his self-esteem," explained one parent on a program questionnaire. Another parent was enthusiastic about her daughter being more 'positive and optimistic.'

"My greatest joy as a principal has been watching students blossom through the caring efforts of teachers, other staff, and programs like this one - I wish all of our students could have participated!" Kate Conway, Middle School principal exclaimed.

"This program has been a great collaboration between the Wilmington Schools, Silver Lake Taekwondo, and ourselves much to the benefit of the students who grew in stature and friendship and self-regard," Carol Golub, Ph.D., Executive Director. "It is well worth our efforts to secure United Way funding which hopefully we have for another year."

'Piloting' in North Reading

"A new comprehensive language arts program is being fully implemented in the town's elementary schools in the fall," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"Representatives of Houghton Mifflin, the company which developed and distributes the program, attended the School Committee's meeting to outline the program.

"Pam Beaudoin, North Reading's Director of Curriculum and Technology, explained that the program is currently being piloted in each elementary school at each grade level (kindergarten through Grade 3) in North Reading and has been very well received.

"She explained that this particular language arts program was selected after two years of reviewing various programs.

"We boiled it down to the one program (Houghton Mifflin Reading) that we thought was good," said Beaudoin.

"A representative of Houghton Mifflin explained that this program is a 'totally integrated language arts program,' which incorporates decoding, vocabulary, comprehension, spelling and grammar. It also has the tools to regularly, and easily, assess the progress of students.

"The resources that come with the program are 'easy'

BALD AS A BEAN AT FLINT LIBRARY

Nancy Parsons of North Reading will speak about her new book, Bald as a Bean: The Experience of Sudden Hair Loss, on Thursday, October 5 at 7 pm at the Flint Memorial Library, 147 Park Street, North Reading.

Nancy Parsons developed alopecia areata, known as sudden hair loss in 2003. The condition can have psychologically devastating consequences. She struggled with many emotions in accepting her diagnosis. Writing the book was part of her acceptance process.

Reviewer Tracy Roberts says, "Nancy shares her intensive and sometimes agonizing physical and spiritual struggle...Nancy chronicles the medical and holistic treatments, as well as the emotional and physical obstacles that she fights to overcome." Roberts recommends the book, not only to those suffering from sudden hair loss, "but as well to those who enjoy reading true stories about the triumph of the human spirit."

Nancy Parsons, a thirty year resident of North Reading, is a retired advertising executive who continues to write magazine articles and business copy. She is the co-author of "Morsels from a Better Mousetrap," a light-hearted look at advertising.

Nancy Parsons will answer questions. Copies of her book will be available for signing. The event is free and open to the public. For further information call the library at 978-664-4942.

Women and girls of any age are invited to learn three holiday songs in 4 part a cappella harmony, then perform with the group at the Woburn Tree lighting on November 25, and again in the chorus's annual show in Billerica, on December 3.

Participants in the POP program will learn "White Christmas," "Winter Wonderland," and a carol medley combining It Came Upon a Midnight Clear and Silent Night. No prior singing experience is necessary, and there is no audition involved. Those who attend will be voice placed depending on how high or low they sing. "It's a chance for someone to try something new or simply revive her holiday spirits in a supportive and joyful environment," commented Eileen Gioe, director of MVC.

The Merrimack Valley Chorus, a chapter of Sweet Adelines International, numbers 32 women from 19 communities in Greater Boston and southern New Hampshire who share a love of music and singing a cappella four-part harmony.

The chorus holds weekly open rehearsals on Thursday at the Wilmington Arts Council Building, 219 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington. The Merrimack Valley Chorus currently is the regional Second Place Small Chorus medalist for Sweet Adelines International. ## Wedding

From S-1

According to Tothaker, Chwaliszewski has two new goals. One is to drive the van and the other is to get back on a motorcycle. One never knows; motivation is a powerful thing.

According to the Brigham and Women's Hospital website (www.brighamandwomens.org): "The equivalent to a heart attack in the brain, a stroke is the result of a reduction in blood flow to the brain."

"A stroke happens when a blood vessel, which brings oxygen and nutrients to the brain, is clogged by a blood clot (ischemic stroke) or bursts (hemorrhagic stroke) and does not allow the brain to get the blood flow it needs. Nerve cells within the affected area of the brain can become deprived of oxygen and die within minutes of the onset of stroke."

"Acting in a similar way as stroke, a transient ischemic attack, or TIA, is a blood clot in the brain that breaks up before causing permanent damage. A TIA indicates that a major stroke may occur and, therefore, places the patient at higher risk for stroke.

"Depending on where in the brain it occurs and the size of the affected area, a stroke can cause the loss of abilities that portion of the brain once controlled and can result in the loss or impairment of body functions such as speech, memory and movement."

Sanborn Place is owned and operated by a non-profit board. It is a federally subsidized housing program with available on-site home care programs and services provided by Sanborn Home Care.

cific needs, at an affordable cost.

- Case management and service coordination;
  - Personal care: assistance with showering, grooming, toileting, meal preparation, feeding, mobility, and medication monitoring;
  - Homemaking: housekeeping, shopping, and laundry;
  - Medical escort: transportation to medical appointments;
  - Companion and respite care;
  - Chore service; and,
  - Local errands and other miscellaneous tasks.

According to Tothaker, Our goal is to keep people out of nursing homes."

Tothaker said that because of the donation by the local Rotary, Sanborn Place is able to make the van available to the elderly and disabled within the community of Reading.

Jacqueline Carson, executive director of Sanborn Place states in a prepared statement "In today's complex society, where we all work hard to meet the needs of our families and ourselves, we know there are many resources and services available, but the perplexing process of finding and obtaining the services often becomes overwhelming."

Sanborn Home Care prides itself in securing and providing services that meet an individual's personal life style. In doing so, we have evoked education, respect and empathy for those benefiting from our services. Our professional staff will assist you in developing a specialized plan of care that will meet your current needs and allow for security and comfort in the future."

Life, longevity and genes

Boston University Medical Center researchers are conducting a study on the roles that genes and other family-related factors might play in exceptional longevity among family members.

Researchers are seeking families with at least two living members aged 90 or older and their living children who reside in Massachusetts and neighboring parts of New Hampshire, Maine, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Trained clinical staff members will meet with study participants in their homes to ask questions about their family and health history and to conduct some physical assessments. Study participants will also be asked for a small blood sample to obtain genetic information.

Century 21 North Shore at the Reading Depot held its Annual Fall Real Estate Kickoff Party on Thursday September 7, at 11 Milton Road in Reading. Jim Beggan, last years Rookie of the Year for C 21 at the Depot, was once again the cook.

During the summer months, usually slow for Real Estate, Jim has listed or sold 5 properties, including "Randy's house" featured on Kiss 108 FM. Century 21 at the Depot believes and has demonstrated that Reading and surrounding towns are still great destination towns.
